FOREWORD BY THE ELECTORAL COMMISSIONER

Local government elections were held across Victoria in October 2016 with over 4.4 million voters on the roll across 78 councils on entitlement day.

As the statutory election service provider under the Local Government Act 1989 the Victorian Electoral Commission conducted elections on behalf of 78 councils<sup>1</sup> using a marginal cost recovery model. This new level of partnership, in place from March 2016, proved effective in streamlining the previous tendering requirements placed upon councils.

With 2,135 candidates contesting 636 vacancies in 222 separate elections, the elections presented as a complex multifaceted program of activity requiring thorough planning by the VEC and very close liaison with client councils. This work commenced in mid-2015 and a draft Election Service Plan was provided to councils in October 2015, identifying key dates and activities, the election services to be provided and initiatives and changes to be introduced into the program. Importantly performance targets were identified in the plan and on which service level agreements with each council were established. Ongoing and open dialogue with councils was critical to the program's success providing councils the opportunity to monitor the VEC's performance at every stage.

The early publication of a timeline highlighted key events in the election program and the sequencing of activities. From early service level negotiations to voters' roll production, election office setup, nominations, voting and counting, all activities were closely directed by the VEC to ensure compliance and to advance community confidence in processes. Returning Officers appointed to manage each council election operated from 78 election offices across the State, providing a local service to councils, candidates and voters. Many of these offices became count centres from where election results were ultimately declared. Information and communication technology support to these offices was very effective.

Within the program there were many demands. The Local Government (Electoral) Regulations 2016 came into force just 11 weeks before election day. These new regulations, amending some processes and activities, also introduced reforms aimed at enhancing the integrity of the elections. The changes were actioned by the VEC. One amendment extending the date for the return of postal votes to 12 noon on the fifth working day after the close of voting was effective in allowing about 428,000 votes to be included in counting, whereas in 2012 such votes would have been excluded. The production of the voters' roll required very close liaison with councils in the merging of voter information to ensure data compatibility and validity and the consequent removal of duplicate records. Large numbers of candidates contesting the elections presented challenges in their support, the production and distribution particularly of postal voting ballot material, and in counting. Also large fields of candidates in many ward elections, such as Harrison Ward in Wyndham City Council with 41 candidates, tested voter ability to conform to voting instructions. Notwithstanding these demands, all elections were declared within the target date of 4 November 2016.

Pleasingly, the turnout for the elections was similar to that in 2012, with the average state-wide turnout for postal elections at 73.75% (72.53% in 2012) and for attendance elections at 61.49% (63.62% in 2012). The figure for the Melbourne City Council elections was 55.19% compared to 60.01% in 2012. The highest turnout was for Warrnambool City Council's election with 83.20% and the lowest turnout was for Port Phillip City Council's elections at 48.60%.

Informality rates were high in these elections, at an average of 6.29% across the State compared to 5.39% in 2012. Not surprisingly in the Harrison Ward election for Wyndham City Council, where 41 candidates contested four vacancies, the informality rate was 17.11%.

Within the election program there were many successes. The inclusion of Regulation changes late in the program timeline was well managed. As an improvement on 2012, the manner in which some 515 complaints were sorted, assigned and resolved involving the Local Government Investigation and Compliance Inspectorate (LGICI) was positive. New modules in the Election Management System (EMS) were proved as effective and the strengthening of the integrity of counting, in particular computer counting, as evidenced by the low number of recount requests, was reassuring. Expanded integrity measures were effective in alerting to potential procedural or data errors.

Extensive public and media commentary and criticism was directed at the VEC on the management of the compulsory voting enforcement process. Most comments were from persons who claimed to have voted and claiming that their postal vote was returned but not delivered in time or, indeed, misplaced. Others insisted on having no knowledge of the elections or their obligation to vote.

While this matter is covered more completely in this report, it is important to note that in complying with the Local Government Act 1989 and the Local Government (Electoral) Regulations 2016, every eligible vote cast in October 2016 was accounted for and counted correctly in determining results. The issue for stakeholders is not the compulsory voting enforcement process, which is being administered correctly, but improving engagement and participation in these important local elections where since 2005, around 30 percent of the electorate have not voted.

This report provides the detail on the many activities that made up the local government election program. Importantly, areas where process and operational improvements can be made are identified and recommendations for the Government's consideration are also listed. The important role of the Municipal Electoral Tribunal and the Victorian Civil and Administrative Tribunal in providing necessary legal consideration on the conduct of the elections is also discussed.

By every measure this large scale quadrennial event was very well conducted. Commission staff performed exceptionally well given the complexity of the activity, the volumes of material involved, the close public scrutiny and the challenges introduced by the late introduction of the Local Government (Electoral) Regulations 2016. My thanks go to all VEC staff and election officials for their work on this program and their continuing commitment to the highest standards of service delivery.

ABOUT THIS REPORT

This publication has been compiled by the Victorian Electoral Commission (VEC) to report on the conduct of the Victorian local government elections held in October 2016.

This report provides commentary on the services provided by the different branches within the VEC and their performance in the execution of the elections. This publication also includes details relating to voting statistics, results of elections and recommendations for future local government elections.

ABOUT THE VICTORIAN ELECTORAL COMMISSION

The VEC is an independent and impartial statutory authority established under Victoria's Electoral Act 2002. The VEC conducts Victorian State elections, local government elections, certain statutory elections and polls, and other fee-for-service elections and polls for commercial and public sector clients. The VEC also conducts boundary reviews, maintains the Victorian register of electors, conducts electoral research, provides education services, and works to engage all Victorians who are entitled to vote in the democratic process.

Changes to the Local Government Act 1989 (LG Act) that took effect on 1 March 2016 established the VEC as the statutory provider of election services to Victoria's local government sector. Prior to this change, the VEC had responded to requests for quote and invitations to tender for local government elections even though it had been the sole provider of local government election services since 2004.

RESPONSE TO 2012 ELECTION RECOMMENDATIONS

OVERVIEW

SUMMARY OF RECOMMENDATIONS

A number of matters are raised in this report for consideration by the Victorian Government. The VEC would welcome the opportunity to be involved in further consideration of these matters prior to future elections.

1 The VEC received a number of complaints from candidates contesting postal elections regarding the inclusion by some candidates of preference information in their 200 word personal statement. The complainants suggested that this was contrary to the decision by the Legislative Council to disallow Regulation 38 of the Regulations which removed the provision for candidates to lodge indications of preferences at postal elections. See section 7.6 of this report. The VEC recommends that consideration is given to providing clarity around the inclusion of preference information in candidate statements submitted in accordance with Regulations 35-37 of the Regulations.	2 The VEC conducted a survey of voters following the election to gain feedback on the services provided by the VEC in conducting the 2016 local government elections. See sections 7.6 and 8.2 of this report. Survey results indicated that just over half of the respondents had looked at the candidate questionnaires and only half of those respondents thought the candidates' answers were useful. The VEC recommends that a review of the questions included in the candidate questionnaire be conducted to respond to feedback from voters.
3 Flooding in Northern Victoria during these elections caused the closure of an election office during the nomination period. While this was managed without issue for these elections, inclusion of provisions in the LG Act to allow the resolution of timeline conflicts caused by physical, natural or other incidents in a local area during the election period would assist in resolving similar situations in future. See section 7.6 of this report. The VEC recommends that consideration is given to providing the Electoral Commissioner with the ability under the LG Act to resolve timeline conflicts caused by physical, natural or other incidents in a local area during the election period.	4 In a situation where a candidate's ineligibility to nominate for election is confirmed after the declaration of the election, as was the case for the Melbourne City Council Election of Councillors, clearer direction is required for the Municipal Electoral Tribunal to respond to this situation to ensure the impact of the ineligible candidate on the whole election is addressed. See section 7.21 of this report. The VEC recommends that section 46 of the LG Act be amended to provide clarity for the Municipal Electoral Tribunal when responding to situations where a candidate who is declared elected, is subsequently determined to be ineligible to nominate as a candidate.
5 In a situation where only one candidate is left in a Group for the Melbourne City Council Election of Councillors after one or more other candidates in that Group retire or die, clearer direction is required for the VEC to respond to the impact on the Group, its group voting ticket, and preferences received by the Group, including ballot papers marked for that Group above-the-line. See section 7.21 of this report. The VEC recommends that the CoM Act is amended to respond to the situation where a Group of candidates registered for the Melbourne City Council Election of Councillors is affected by the retirement or death of one or more candidates participating in that Group.	6 The LG Act requires the Registrar and Returning Officer to publish a number of public notices throughout the election cycle. Section 3(1) of the LG Act defines a public notice as a notice that is published in 'a newspaper that is generally circulating within the municipal district of the Council'. The VEC recommends consideration is given to amending section 3(1) of the LG Act to account for declining newspaper consumption and replacing it with other mechanisms for increasing awareness of public notices, particularly in relation to entitlement provisions for non-citizen resident ratepayers, corporations and occupiers of properties with rates responsibility and located within the local government area.

7 The VEC prepared and dispatched 3,715,881 ballot packs for 218 contested postal elections within the legislative time-period from final lodgement of candidate products to the first day for despatch of ballot material. The increasing enrolment observed at each round of elections is making the ability to meet this timeframe more challenging given the high degree of accuracy, accountability and security required for these processes. See section 7.7 of this report.

The VEC recommends consideration is given to increasing the period between the final lodgement of candidate products and the first day for despatch of ballot packs for postal elections.

8 Regulation 119(2)(e) of the Regulations provides a sufficient excuse for not voting includes where a voter “returned a declaration envelope within 7 days immediately after the last day of voting”. This needs to be considered in light of the introduction of the extended postal vote receipt period. The meaning of “returned” should also be clarified.

The VEC recommends consideration is given to amending Regulation 119(2)(e) of the Regulations so that a voter can be excused if their declaration is received by the VEC within 7 days of the close of the extended postal vote receipt period.

9 For the first time, the VEC examined informal votes to assess trends in the errors made on the ballot papers that are classified as informal. See section 7.19. The key finding of the informal voting study was that more than two thirds of the informal votes were cast by voters who expressed a clear preference, but whose vote could not be accepted due to the formality rules of the LG Act. This pattern was particularly marked in the two elections with the most candidates.

The VEC recommends consideration of a remedy for the increased level of unintentional informal voting in elections with high numbers of candidates.

10 The VEC observed significantly lower participation rates from voters enrolled under sections 13-16 of the LG Act, in particular, for attendance elections. See section 7.17 and Appendix 14 of this report.

The VEC recommends consideration of a consistent application process for activating CEO List entitlements. Given that this would require voters to actively engage in the process of enrolment, further consideration could be given to the relevance of extending the compulsory voting obligation to this group.

1. Frameworks

Local government elections in Victoria are governed by the following legislative frameworks:

Constitution Act 1975

Local Government Act 1989

Electoral Act 2002

In addition to the above, specific requirements for the elections for the Melbourne City Council are also governed by the City of Melbourne Act 2001 (CoM Act). Associated regulations support these Acts.

1.1 LEGISLATION

The LG Act provides that local government elections are to be held on the fourth Saturday of October every four years in participating municipalities to ensure that local government consists of democratically elected councils. In October 2016, general elections were conducted for 78 of Victoria's 79 councils, with the general election for Greater Geelong City Council postponed until October 2017.

The passage of the Local Government Amendment (Improved Governance) Act 2015 (the LG Amendment Act) clarified a number of aspects of local government elections and codified the VEC's default position as electoral service provider to Victoria's local government sector, making the VEC the statutory provider for all local government elections in Victoria. The LG Amendment Act also made changes to several areas of the election program and provided clarity around the role of the Returning Officer. Specific provisions under the CoM Act and City of Greater Geelong Act 1993 (the CoGG Act) which were only applicable to these councils were also made through the LG Amendment Act.

1.2 REGULATION

On 26 July 2016, the Governor in Council made the Local Government (Electoral) Regulations 2016 (the Regulations) that took effect on 7 August 2016. The Regulations replaced the Local Government (Electoral) Regulations 2005, which were due to sunset on 8 August 2016. On 2 August 2016, the City of Melbourne (Electoral) Amendment Regulations 2016 were made to make corresponding changes for Melbourne City Council elections.

Included in the new Regulations were provisions that directly related to the conduct of the 2016 local government elections to enhance the integrity of the electoral system.

In August 2016, approximately one month after the Regulations were made, the Legislative Council disallowed one instrument in the Regulations, effectively removing the provision for candidates to lodge indications of preferences at postal elections.

Candidate questionnaires

Candidates were invited to answer a list of prescribed questions consisting of mainly yes/no answers. The questions centred on training that would enable the candidate to fulfil their duties as a councillor, knowledge of council documents, details of endorsements by a registered political party, and for current councillors, details on their attendance record at council meetings.

Extended postal vote receipt period

Postal votes were able to be admitted for postal and attendance elections during an extended postal vote receipt period if the Returning Officer was satisfied that the declaration was completed by the voter before the close of voting.

The close of the extended postal vote period was set as 12 noon five working days after election day.

All election records to be held by the VEC following the election.

The VEC to have safe and secure custody of election records after the elections. Records no longer forwarded to council.

Candidate statements

Word limit increased from 150 to 200 words.

Online postal vote applications

Voters at attendance elections could apply online for a postal vote using an authentication process allowing the application to be matched against the returned postal vote.

Voters requiring braille or large print ballot papers

Voters requiring access to braille ballot papers for attendance elections were no longer required to lodge a written postal vote application but were able to lodge their request via more accessible media.

City of Melbourne Act 2001 and City of Melbourne (Electoral) Regulations 2012

An additional excuse was listed for Melbourne City Council elections for voters with overseas postal addresses.

2. Responsibilities

2.1 ELECTORAL COMMISSIONER

The LG Amendment Act provided clarity around the responsibilities of the VEC and the Electoral Commissioner in the preparation of the voters' roll, conduct of the elections and the enforcement of compulsory voting.

Accordingly, the VEC must:

- maintain a list of legislative assembly voters (EC List)
- prepare the voters' roll<sup>2</sup>
- conduct the elections
- act as the enforcement agency for the purposes of compulsory voting enforcement.

The Electoral Commissioner is responsible for the appointment of the Registrar for the certification of the voters' roll pursuant to section 3(1) of the LG Act<sup>3</sup>. The Electoral Commissioner also appoints the Prosecution Officer for the purposes of compulsory voting enforcement pursuant to section 40(2) of the LG Act.

The LG Act provides that the Electoral Commissioner is the Returning Officer for all Victorian local government elections. Once the VEC enters the preparation phase of the elections, the Electoral Commissioner appoints a Returning Officer to each council election pursuant to clause 1(2)(c) of Schedule 2 of the LG Act.

2.2 COUNCILS

Councils play an integral role in the execution of local government elections. The VEC and each council worked in close partnership throughout the election timeline from the planning and implementation phases through to the feedback and evaluation phases post-election.

In accordance with section 22 of the LG Act, the council is responsible for the maintenance of the Chief Executive Officer's List (CEO List) which is combined with the EC List to create the voters' roll. Councils are also responsible for responding to complaints regarding alleged breaches of local laws and the VEC refers all such matters to council for appropriate action.

2.3 LOCAL GOVERNMENT INVESTIGATIONS AND COMPLIANCE INSPECTORATE

The Local Government Investigations and Compliance Inspectorate (LGICI) is responsible for the investigation and prosecution of alleged breaches of the LG Act. The VEC and the LGICI worked in close consultation throughout the election period and established a Memorandum of Understanding to govern the cooperation for the 2016 local government elections.

3. Electoral Landscape

The information below highlights the changes in the context of local government elections between 2012 and 2016.

3.1 REPRESENTATION REVIEWS AND CHANGES IN STRUCTURE

Division 2 of Part 10 of the LG Act provides that the VEC must conduct electoral representation reviews of all Victorian councils. The purpose of an electoral representation review is to provide for fair and equitable representation of the voters of the council. Each council must be reviewed before every third general election (approximately every 12 years) or earlier if another trigger in the LG Act is activated requiring an earlier review. A review cannot commence until two years before a council's general election, and must be completed no later than six months before that general election.

An electoral representation review examines:

- the appropriate number of councillors (between five and twelve)
- whether the council should be subdivided into wards or should be unsubdivided and
- if the council is divided into wards, the boundaries of wards and the number of councillors for each ward. If a council is divided into wards, the number of voters represented by each councillor must be within 10 per cent of the average number of voters per councillor across the council. This ensures equality of representation.

During 2015-16, the VEC conducted electoral representation reviews for 24 of Victoria's 79 councils. The councils reviewed varied greatly in terms of their social and demographic character and their electoral structure. The recommendations for each council are included in Figure 3.

Council	Recommended structure	Recommended number of councillors
Alpine, Corangamite, Hindmarsh, Horsham, Indigo, Mildura, Towong, Warrnambool, West Wimmera, Wodonga, Yarriambiack	No change	No change

Ballarat, Gannawarra, Knox, Moonee Valley	Change to ward boundaries. No change to the number of wards.	No change

Baw Baw, Wangaratta, Wellington, Yarra Ranges	Change from unsubdivided to wards (Wangaratta & Wellington) Change to the number of wards (Baw Baw & Yarra Ranges)	No change
Bass Coast, Port Phillip	Change to the number of wards	Increase from 7 to 9
Greater Geelong	Change to the number of wards	Decrease from 13 to 12 (11 councillors + 1 mayor)

The VEC's recommendations in all but two cases were adopted by the Minister for Local Government and took effect at the 2016 council elections:

Greater Geelong City Council: The Council was dismissed and administrators were installed in early 2016. As a result, the general election for the council, scheduled for October 2016, was postponed. There was no decision on the VEC's recommendation as Greater Geelong City Council did not have a general election.

Yarra Ranges Shire Council: The VEC recommended a change from the council's existing structure of nine single-councillor wards to three three-councillor wards. The Minister for Local Government adopted an option that was considered by the VEC during the preliminary stages of the review. The decision continued the existing structure of nine single-councillor wards, but made changes to ward boundaries.

The VEC also conducted subdivision reviews for six councils (Boroondara, Cardinia, Casey, Mitchell, Mornington Peninsula, Whittlesea). A subdivision review is required where a council is not due for an electoral representation review, but where the number of voters enrolled for at least one ward is likely to deviate beyond the legislated  $\pm 10$  per cent tolerance by the next general election. In these reviews, the VEC restored enrolment numbers to comply with the LG Act by making comparatively minor changes to ward boundaries.

3.2 BRIMBANK AND GREATER GEELONG CITY COUNCILS

Brimbank City Council had been governed by administrators since it was dismissed in 2009. Brimbank returned to elected councillors at the 2016 elections.

As a result of the dismissal of the Greater Geelong City Council in early 2016, the general election for the Greater Geelong City Council was postponed to October 2017.

3.3 METHOD OF VOTING

Councils are able to choose for their elections to be conducted entirely by postal voting or by attendance voting. If a council wishes to change its method of voting from what was used for its previous election, it must decide the change at least eight months before the election day. The majority of councils have opted for their elections be conducted entirely by postal voting. There were 72 postal elections in 2016, and six attendance elections (Banyule, Greater Dandenong, Knox, Moreland, Port Phillip and Yarra City Councils). This is compared to 2012 when there were eight attendance elections; Glen Eira and Stonnington City Councils resolved to switch to postal voting for the 2016 elections.

3.4 OTHER REVIEWS

In 2013-14, a Local Government Electoral Review Panel established by the State Government reviewed many aspects of Victoria's local government electoral system. The panel's two reports, released in 2014, recommended substantial changes to the system. However, the Panel's recommendations were not adopted by the Government or translated into law.

In 2015, the State Government launched a comprehensive review of the LG Act. The directions paper for the review proposed significant changes to the electoral provisions. The review was still underway at the time of the 2016 elections, and did not affect the conduct of these elections.

4. Service Plan

The VEC conducts extensive evaluation after each local government electoral event where all activities are reviewed. The evaluation includes feedback from councils, staff, voters and candidates. Following the 2012 local government elections, the VEC submitted a comprehensive report<sup>4</sup> to the Minister for Local Government that summarised the events, results and feedback from the elections and provided the Minister with a number of recommendations for consideration. A number of the recommendations were addressed by the LG Amendment Act and the Regulations.

The VEC's draft election service plan for the 2016 elections was released in October 2015 requesting feedback from councils and stakeholders. The final plan was released in December 2015 and included the VEC's response to legislative change, as well as information on key initiatives and changes from the 2012 local government elections. The election service plan followed two major principles:

Local focus for election services

The VEC committed to appoint a Returning Officer for each local council election and for each election to be managed locally. Accordingly, the management of candidates, enquiries from the public, and vote counting in the main, took place locally within the local council area. Contingency plans were put in place to cover overflow enquiries from voters.

Cost effective

The VEC's election service plan aimed to provide high quality cost-effective election services. The VEC's local government election program met all statutory requirements while ensuring customer focus, service and accuracy. All aspects and initiatives implemented in the 2016 local government election program were comprehensively analysed for their cost and benefits.

Although cost increases in some areas of the local government election program were unavoidable, the VEC was committed to seeking opportunities to minimise cost increases where possible.

4.1 PERFORMANCE TARGETS

The VEC set out specific targets for election preparation, conduct and outcomes for the 2016 local government elections to measure its performance. Details of these targets and comments against each can be found in Figures 4a, 4b and 4c.

Establish all election service agreements with local councils by 27 May 2016.	Achieved. The VEC developed a new electoral service agreement template for the 2016 elections that reflected the strong partnership between the VEC and each local council. Agreements were in place for all councils by the specified date.
Establish election offices, voting centres and early voting centres, where relevant, that are suitably located within the municipality, and publish accurate information on their accessibility level.	Achieved. Election offices and voting centres were established in consultation with councils. Accessibility information was published on interactive maps on the VEC website.
Conduct a public awareness campaign to inform all Victorians of their opportunity to vote with a focus on culturally and linguistically diverse (CALD) communities, people experiencing homelessness, people living with a disability, and Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities.	Achieved. The VEC advertised the elections in local and non-English newspapers, on radio including non-English programs/stations, online, via social media and through direct mail. The public awareness campaign met its obligations and had a focus on the mentioned groups, with a record number of community education and outreach sessions delivered.
Establish a framework to appropriately evaluate and respond to complaints and enquiries, including timely referral of compliance matters to the relevant investigating authority.	Achieved. The VEC worked closely with the LGICI to develop a streamlined election period complaints handling procedure. The VEC committed to respond to complaints within five business days and, on average, responses were sent within three days.

5. Initiatives

5.1 DOCUMENT EXCHANGE SERVER

Roll production for local council elections is a co-operative process between the VEC and the councils themselves, as voting entitlements between the EC List and CEO List must be established. Throughout the 12 month roll production period for the 2016 local government elections, significant exchange of reports and data occurred between each council and the VEC which previously took place using email and CD ROM.

Prior to the commencement of roll production for the 2016 local government elections, the VEC implemented a web based facility for secure exchange of data (DEX). Compliant with legislation, the new facility significantly enhanced the security of data during transmission, therefore enhancing the privacy of the voting public.

Local government election candidates may request access to the voters' roll for their nominated ward or unsubdivided council for campaign purposes. DEX provided secure access for candidates to a copy of the roll.

5.2 UPDATES TO THE CANDIDATE HELPER

The VEC's enhanced online Candidate Helper provided candidates with the ability to complete, save, retrieve and edit forms required in relation to their candidature. See section 7.5 of this report.

Enhancements to the candidate helper for the 2016 elections included additional functionality for Melbourne City Council Leadership Team and Councillor election candidates. Further enhancements were implemented with the introduction of the candidate questionnaire allowing candidates to complete their questionnaire prior to printing and lodgement with the Returning Officer.

5.3 SINGLE OFFICE MODEL

Following a review of the VEC's 2012 election office model and feedback from local councils, the VEC proposed the establishment of an election office within each local council area for the 2016 elections. This differed from the 2012 elections where 56 election offices of various combinations were established to support the conduct of the 78 elections. The change provided a local focus for all councils and streamlined training, infrastructure and support requirements.

The redevelopment of the VEC's EMS into a browser based system removed the previous need for large amounts of expensive infrastructure requiring extensive configuration being required for each election. The new system also provided the VEC with a real time view of activity within each office.

5.4 CENTRALISED COMPUTER COUNT LOCATIONS

The VEC implemented a new strategy of centralised computer count locations for the 2016 local government elections.

Six centralised computer count locations based across metropolitan and regional areas were established.

Computerised counts for 25 councils were based across these centralised sites, with the largest location, the Melbourne Showgrounds, hosting 30 computerised counts for 10 councils.

The reasons for this approach included:

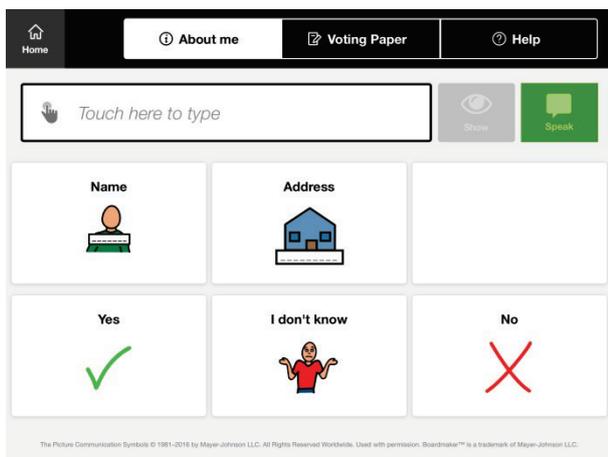

- availability of venues – smaller individual venues did not have the flexibility to provide the VEC with an extension to a booking, if required
- cost saving – shared and consistent costing for centralised venues rather than numerous inconsistent (in cost and size) bookings for each council (some in close proximity) across the metropolitan area
- data entry operators – utilising a central team of data entry operators for a whole count venue ensured consistency in training and quality
- count supervisors – VEC allocated Head Office staff to the centralised venues to assist and provide support to team leaders. Count supervisors assisted with the set up and pack up for each individual count ensuring the site was prepared when the Returning Officer and data entry operators arrived.

5.5 VOTERS VOICE

Voters Voice is a free iPad application designed to assist voters with complex communication difficulties to participate in Victorian elections; specifically voting in person at a voting centre. The application includes text-to-voice software customised for use with election terminology.

The application's creation was based on the need to find a 'bring-your-own' solution to replace the need for hardcopy communication boards in all voting centres and having to train staff in their use. Furthermore, the application voids the need for Auslan interpreters at key voting sites.

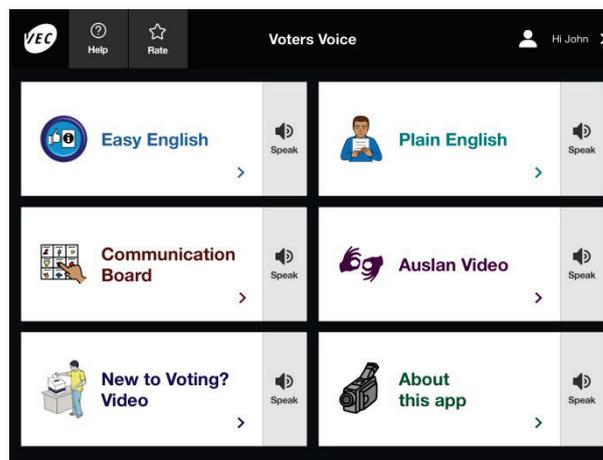

The VEC developed the inaugural version for the 2016 Victorian local government elections in conjunction with project partner Scope (a disability support agency). A prototype was developed and trialed with potential users, disability support staff and representatives from the VEC's Electoral Access Advisory Group.

The application functions include the ability to 'speak' or 'show' pre-filled name and address information, as well as key voting phrases. It also provides a keyboard for those with a higher level of literacy skill. Questions and answers (which are able to be pre-prepared) can be 'asked' out loud or shown on a screen in interactions with election staff.

Voters Voice received excellent coverage in the media and positive feedback from disability agencies. The application was available in the iTunes store from 8 August 2016 and had a total of 1,615 downloads over a five week period.

6. Voters' Roll

The preparation of the 2016 voters' roll commenced 18 months prior to the election with VEC officers attending the Revenue Managers Association Annual Conference in 2015 to brief council revenue managers on roll production. An information booklet was made available to attendees of the conference with details of the process for roll preparation.

To compile a voters' roll for each local government election, the EC List of State-enrolled voters and the CEO List, provided by the council are combined. Every effort is made to identify records that appear on both lists and, in accordance with the LG Act, any duplicate records from the CEO List is removed.

6.1 LOCAL GOVERNMENT ENROLMENT ENTITLEMENTS

Enrolment entitlements for local government elections differ from those that apply at State and Federal elections. Enrolment entitlements for 77 of the 78 Victorian councils that held a general election in 2016 were specified under the LG Act, with the CoM Act providing additional entitlement provisions for Melbourne City Council elections.

General provisions

Enrolment entitlements at a local government election fall into three groups:

1. Residents in the local council area who are on the roll for the Legislative Assembly (section 12 of the LG Act) – EC List

State enrolled residents who are 18 years and over, Australian citizens or qualified British subjects are included on the EC List. To enrol, an enrolment form must be completed, signed and witnessed prior to the entitlement date. Entitlement is based on the residential address on the enrolment form.

State enrolled voters formed approximately 86% of the roll across all local councils. The EC List database has been designed and maintained for the purpose of producing electoral rolls for State and local government elections.

2. Non-resident ratepayers (section 13 of the LG Act) – CEO List

A person who owns a rateable property in the local council area (whether solely or jointly) and who is not a resident of the area, is automatically entitled to be enrolled on the voters' roll in respect of that property (i.e. without application). This entitlement is limited to two people per property. This entitlement category formed approximately 14% of the roll across all local councils. Records for these people are extracted from each council's rates and property systems.

3. Other ratepayer entitlements (sections 14, 15 and 16 of the LG Act) – CEO List

Other enrolment entitlements include resident owner-occupiers, occupiers with rates responsibility and appointed voting representatives for companies with rates responsibilities. To be entitled to vote, people or companies within these groups must complete an application form each election cycle. Council includes this group on its CEO List. These groups made up about 0.05% (combined) of the roll across all local councils.

Melbourne City Council enrolment entitlements

Enrolment entitlements for Melbourne City Council elections vary slightly from those that apply for all other local councils in Victoria. In addition to the general entitlements listed above, the following CEO entitlements also apply.

1. A person who occupies rateable property in the City of Melbourne and resides within the City of Melbourne area, but is not on the State register (including non-Australian citizens) can make an application to Council for enrolment before the entitlement date. If the person is a resident occupier, they must have been a resident for at least one month prior to the entitlement date.
2. A person who is a director or company secretary of a corporation (or holds an equivalent position) that owns or occupies a rateable property solely or jointly within the City of Melbourne. If the company does not appoint two voting representatives by the entitlement date, Melbourne City Council is required to enrol company officers using data provided by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission.

7. Local Government Elections 2016 in Review

7.1 PLANNING AND PREPARATION

Planning for the 2016 local government elections commenced 18 months prior to the event. Planning from this stage provided the VEC with the opportunity to:

- recruit and train staff
- consult with councils
- ensure adequate preparation for compilation of the voters' roll
- provide councils with service agreements, estimates and quotes
- organise the sourcing and set up of each individual election office.

The preparation phase included discussions with councils regarding their decision to conduct their election by either the postal or attendance method of voting by the deadline of 22 February 2016. Consequently, 72 councils held postal elections and six councils held attendance elections.

The preparation phase also included the implementation of service level agreements with each of the 78 participating councils. The electoral service agreement with each council established the costing arrangements for the preparation, conduct, and closure of each election and summarised contingency election services that may be required during the 2016–2020 council term. All electoral service agreements were in place by the target date set out in the election service plan (27 May 2016).

See Appendix 1 for election timelines.

Council consultation

The VEC held eight briefings with council officers in October 2015, including including two metropolitan sessions, four regional sessions and two one-on-one sessions. The briefings gave the VEC the opportunity to present its draft service plan to councils and discuss key targets and deliverables.

Further to the service plan consultation, the VEC's contract management team visited councils in May, June and July 2016 to finalise their election arrangements one-on-one. At these meetings, VEC contract managers reinforced the key elements of the election service plan and discussed particular requirements for each council's election.

Election offices

The VEC established an individual election office within each local council area for the 2016 local government elections. The selection of suitable accommodation is an imperative part of the process and all suggested venues underwent a comprehensive audit to ensure they met a number of requirements.

When determining the suitability of accommodation, the following factors are assessed and considered:

- security – the venue is secure and has a separate storage space for ballot material
- location – within council boundaries and is accessible by the public
- budget – is within reasonable budget
- accessibility – wheelchair access and suitable disabled parking
- connectivity – the venue can support the VEC's EMS throughout all stages of the election timeline

In the first instance, the VEC approached each council for suggested venues. For councils that indicated it may be able to provide suitable accommodation, the VEC's contract management team conducted a preliminary inspection early in 2016 to check the site's suitability against these requirements. If the accommodation was found to be unsuitable, and no suitable alternatives were identified, the VEC undertook responsibility for securing an election office venue.

The 2016 local government elections comprised 25 election offices leased by the VEC and 53 provided by councils. All election offices opened on Wednesday 14 September 2016 and were de-installed and closed by Friday 30 November 2016.

There are often essential modifications required for election offices to accommodate their varied functions throughout the election timeline. A lead period of up to six weeks, which is required by network installers to establish connections, is an important consideration. The VEC deemed a number of proposed election office venues unsuitable where the sites were not able to support the VEC's programming or network needs. The VEC will continue to enhance its planning for future elections to ensure early identification of proposed venues that do not meet the necessary criteria for an election office.

7.2 HUMAN RESOURCES AND SUPPORT SERVICES

The planning of an electoral event requires consideration of staff numbers so that each election can be executed to the highest standard and in a timely manner.

In accordance with section 17A of the Electoral Act 2002 and section 75 of the Equal Opportunity Act 2010, the VEC may discriminate against a person in relation to offering employment on the basis of that person's political belief or activity. All staff appointed to roles for the 2016 local government elections were required to complete a disclosure of political activities. The disclosure was then assessed to ensure that there could be no perception of political bias in relation to their work.

The VEC rejected a total of 50 applications on the basis of their political disclosure.

Contract Managers

Relationships between councils and the VEC were managed by a team of five contract managers based at the VEC's head office. The contract management team acted as a key liaison as well as a key source of information for councils. The team also represented the VEC during consultation, negotiation and evaluation discussions with council officers. Contract managers were familiar with the legislative requirements and informed of legislative and regulatory changes. The contract management team reported to the Local Government Program Manager who oversaw the program.

Election Support Officers

During the election period, each Returning Officer was supported by an Election Support Officer based at the VEC's head office. The Election Support Officer team consisted of nine highly competent election officials who were experienced in managing elections. The Election Support Officer team was responsible for providing Returning Officers with procedural guidance and advice relating to legislation.

The Election Support Officers were assisted by two field support officers who were positioned to provide on-site assistance at election offices throughout the election timeline.

Returning Officers and Deputy Returning Officers

Returning Officers are impartial and independent election staff that are responsible for the management of their appointed election. Returning Officers delegate responsibilities to Deputy Returning Officers or other authorised persons to support the functions of the election office.

The Electoral Commissioner appointed 78 Returning Officers to manage the election for the 78 participating councils. A further Returning Officer was appointed to the South Gippsland Shire Council election when the original Returning Officer became unavailable. There were 89 appointed Deputy Returning Officers (DROs) to support Returning Officers in election offices with some councils being allocated up to three DROs. DROs were allocated on the basis of enrolment numbers with additional DROs allocated to larger, more complex electorates. A further nine Deputy Returning Officers were appointed to support specific centralised functions across a range of councils.

As in previous elections, Returning Officers and Deputy Returning Officers were selected from a pool of available senior election officials. Once roles were finalised, Returning Officers and Deputy Returning Officers attended a three day training seminar at the VEC's head office which was relevant to the election method to which they had been appointed (postal or attendance).

See Appendix 2 for a list of Returning Officers and election office details.

Appointed Returning Officers and Deputy Returning Officers across Victoria were kept up to date with changes to the Regulations via a series of webinars and briefings from the VEC's management team. These webinars provided Returning Officers and Deputy Returning Officers with the opportunity to listen to legislative updates and ask questions.

Comprehensive manuals were provided to election management teams which included operational and procedural information.

For attendance elections, Returning Officers were provided with the resources required to present localised training for Voting Centre Managers, Assistant Voting Centre Managers and Election Liaison Officers.

Casual staff

The VEC is dedicated to employing a diverse range of individuals to fill election roles.

Staffing profiles were prepared in advance of the opening of election offices and were based on enrolment numbers within councils and peak work periods during the election. Almost 4,600 casual staff were appointed to fulfil a variety of roles at 78 election offices<sup>8</sup> around the state. In addition, 1,170 election officials were appointed to election day roles in voting centres for attendance elections.

Help desk

The VEC established a central help desk to provide telephone and email support for election office staff (particularly Returning Officers) appointed to conduct the 2016 local government elections. Operation commenced in late August and continued until Friday 11 November 2016.

<sup>8</sup> This number does not include the election offices of Mansfield Shire Council and Towong Shire Council as these elections were wholly uncontested.

The Help Desk provided three main services:

- performing quality checks of the computer infrastructure before the opening of each election office
- directing all calls regarding election procedures to the relevant Election Support Officer and
- providing support for the VEC's election systems, including the resolution of any technical issues being experienced in the field.

The Help Desk was made up of a team of five full-time staff members, including two team leaders, and was supported by members of the VEC's IT Branch and system specialists from the VEC's Elections Branch. All Help Desk staff were experienced operators who had performed the role at previous elections.

Personnel helpline

The VEC's Personnel Helpline provided high quality phone and email support to election staff and operated from Monday 22 August to Friday 18 November 2016.

The Personnel Helpline assisted election staff to:

- access and navigate the VEC's personnel systems such as the election staff self-service portal and online registration
- log in to their election staff self-service portal to update contact details, enter banking, tax and superannuation details, access pay advices, and accept any offers of appointment
- complete their online registration for employment
- complete timesheets
- resolve pay related queries
- understand the political disclosure requirements
- complete online training.

A total of 4,785 calls were received between 22 August and 18 November 2016.

Public telephone enquiries

A new telephone model was introduced for the 2016 local government elections, which enabled the VEC to have all election office lines operate as 'extensions' to its primary number and thus reduce call costs to regional and rural offices.

Each election office established a local telephone enquiry service which operated from Wednesday 14 September to Monday 24 October 2016. Election offices received a total of 90,142 incoming calls during this period.

An overflow call centre operated at head office from Monday 19 September to Wednesday 26 October and handled calls 'overflowing' from 77 of the 78 election offices. Due to the very specific legislation covering the Melbourne City Council elections, these calls were transferred directly to the Melbourne City Council election office.

Over the operating period, a total of 47,566 calls were received by the overflow service. Approximately 16,263 (34%) of calls were abandoned, resulting in 31,303 (66%) incoming calls handled. As there was a maximum of 20 operators during the busiest period, with four supervisors, this averaged around 1,565 calls per operator over the operating period with an average handling time of 3 mins 18 secs per call.

The peak period for calls at the overflow service was from Monday 10 October through to Friday 21 October 2016 when postal ballot packs had been dispatched to households.

Attendance election offices were open to take calls on Saturday 22 October 2016 (election day) and 7,456 calls were received on this day with 143 abandoned. Approximately 2,835 calls overflowed from election offices on this day.

Interpreter calls

A total of 2,408 interpreter calls were received from Wednesday 14 September to Wednesday 26 October 2016 with 2,345 calls being received via the Victorian Interpreting and Translating Service and 63 via the Federal Government Translating Interpreter Service.

Public email enquiries

A total of 2,921 public enquiry emails were responded to from Monday 26 September until Friday 28 October 2016 with the peak period for emails being from the 10 - 24 October.

7.3 ELECTION MANAGEMENT SYSTEM (EMS)

The VEC's EMS is a secure computerised system developed by the VEC to support the end to end administration and management of elections. Prior to the 2016 general elections, the EMS underwent significant redevelopment where new and improved functions were rolled out to election offices. These functions were accessible via one central deployment to all election offices, rather than individual deployments as seen in previous general elections.

The EMS is utilised by election office staff throughout the election period and by head office staff to provide oversight into the management of each election. Head office staff were able to oversee the activities of election offices including reconciliation of ballot papers.

7.4 ROLL PRODUCTION

Considerable time and effort is devoted to roll production with the intricate checking of names and addresses in an effort to prepare voters' rolls that are as accurate as possible.

Voters' roll production

The VEC was responsible for the preparation of the voters' roll for 77 of the 78 councils in 2016 and the Electoral Commissioner appointed Melanie Davidson as the Registrar for these elections. At the time of the election, Ms Davidson was the VEC's Manager of Electoral Enrolment. The VEC is not the registrar for the Melbourne City Council elections; this responsibility is held by the Chief Executive Officer of the Melbourne City Council.

Data matching

Roll production commenced in September 2015 with the VEC matching entire database extracts from councils with the State roll database. The objective of this exercise was to provide dates of birth to council where definite matches occurred, identify deceased persons and to clarify the spelling and formatting of names. This work is an essential foundation to ensuring a quality roll.

Most councils participated in this exercise, which resulted in an increased percentage of council records with date of birth information.

Overall 86.7% of council entitlements included date of birth. This compares with 78.7% in 2012 and 65.2% in 2008. Only eight councils had dates of birth on less than 80% of entitlements - the VEC target - compared with 38 in 2012.

Preliminary roll

Commencing in March 2016, the VEC conducted a trial run of roll production. This was an essential task designed to identify and resolve any issues early in the roll production process. This preliminary process aimed to identify and provide feedback to councils on matters that could delay final processing or compromise the comprehensiveness and/or accuracy of the final voters' roll. This detailed feedback, including possible duplicates and the names of deceased voters, was provided to council for action so that the quality of final data was improved with processing delays minimised.

Primary enrolment data

The LG Amendment Act removed the requirement to prepare and display exhibition rolls. In its place, the Registrar, under section 22(2) of the LG Act, requested that councils supply their CEO List data to the VEC by Monday 11 July 2016<sup>9</sup>. This data was loaded into the VEC computer system and merged with the State roll data for each council. Matching routines were used to try to identify and remove duplicates and the names of deceased voters. Decisions on possible duplicates were made in conjunction with the relevant council. From this, a roll was prepared and was sent to councils for quality assurance purposes.

Production of the certified voters' rolls

Following the close of roll at 4.00 pm on Friday 26 August 2016, each council provided the VEC with their CEO List in a similar format to that provided for primary enrolment data. This contained the details of ratepayers who were entitled to be enrolled as at entitlement day. Changes to the CEO List between the primary enrolment data extract and the entitlement date were determined and these changes were applied, along with changes to the EC List, to the primary enrolment data to produce the rolls for certification. By processing only the changes between the two, the VEC was able to produce the required rolls in the short timeline between the entitlement and certification dates.

The voters' roll was certified by the Registrar on Thursday 15 September 2016 for use at the 2016 election.

Enrolment

A total of 4,427,849 voters were enrolled at the close of rolls for the local government elections in 2016. A total of 3,800,955 persons were enrolled on the EC List and 626,894 on the CEO List. This excludes Greater Geelong City Council. This is an increase of 329,842 (8%) from 2012 where there was a total of 4,098,007 voters enrolled at the close of roll.

The table in Appendix 3 shows voter numbers by electorate and voting entitlement for each council.

Amendments to the certified voters' rolls

Across all 78 participating councils, there were 1,794 additions and 917 deletions made to the voters' rolls after the certification date. These amendments were made pursuant to the process provided by section 24A of the LG Act or section 11E of the CoM Act. This was a significant increase from 2012 where there were 338 additions and 499 deletions for the 78 participating councils. This increase is mostly attributable to amendments made to the voters' roll for the Melbourne City Council.

See Appendix 3 for a detailed breakdown of the roll amendments.

7.5 CANDIDATE INFORMATION

Information sessions

The VEC conducted one or more candidate information sessions for each council. The sessions provided prospective candidates with information about the election process and their responsibilities as candidates. It was also an opportunity for prospective candidates to meet the Returning Officer, set up a nomination appointment or ask questions about the process.

The information sessions were held between Monday 12 and Wednesday 14 September 2016 with the sessions concluding the day prior to the opening of nominations. There was a total of 90 information sessions held across the 78 participating councils.

Candidate Helper

As in previous local government elections, the VEC's Candidate Helper was available to candidates through the VEC's website. The Helper provided candidates with the opportunity to create and edit their candidacy material online. When printed, the form included a barcode which the Returning Officer scanned at the election office to retrieve the information. The candidate's information (data) was uploaded directly into the VEC's EMS. This significantly reduced processing times and streamlined quality assurance practices.

The candidate helper was rewritten prior to the 2016 elections so that it was more user friendly. Updates included the option of returning to form/s and make edits prior to submission. The late introduction of the candidate questionnaire meant that separate access was required for this part of the application. Changes in the helper also extended to the Melbourne City Council Leadership Team election candidates, allowing these candidates to now use the helper.

Information kit

An information kit was made available to prospective candidates at candidate information sessions and the election office.

Items included in the kit:

- Candidate Handbook
- Nomination Form
- Scrutineer Handbook
- form for the appointment and declaration of a scrutineer
- form for completion of the candidate statement (postal elections)
- form to request a team name (Melbourne City Council only)
- form for group registration (Melbourne City Council only)
- sample candidate statement
- application form for the registration of a how-to-vote card (attendance elections)
- campaign donation return form
- information on becoming a councillor
- key election dates
- map of the local council area
- Returning Officer's contact details.

Candidate bulletins

Returning Officers provided candidates with regular bulletins during the election period providing reminders on deadlines and other relevant information including counting arrangements.

7.6 CANDIDATE SERVICES

Nominations

Nominations were accepted from 9.00 am on Thursday 15 September until 12 noon on Tuesday 20 September. Late nominations were not accepted. The fee to nominate as a candidate was $250 per candidate as set by the LG Act.

The LG Amendment Act amended the LG Act requiring candidates to sign and lodge their nomination form in person at the election office during the nomination period. The ability to nominate without being present was no longer permitted.

There was a total of 2,149 nominations for 636 vacancies in 222 separate elections received during the nomination period. Fourteen nominations were withdrawn leaving 2,135 active nominations at the close of nominations. This was an increase from 2012 which had 2,000 active nominations at the close of nominations.

Approximately 74% (1,590) of candidates completed their nomination form using the VEC's online candidate helper; a 9% increase on the number that used the helper in 2012.

The highest number of candidates for any election was in the Wyndham City Council, Harrison Ward with 41 nominations and for the East Gippsland Shire Council election with 40 nominations. The number of candidates for East Gippsland Shire reduced to 39 following advice from the LGICl on the ineligibility of one candidate. This candidate was retired from the election on Monday 26 September. The VEC received further advice of the ineligibility of a candidate standing for Frankston City Council, South Ward. This candidate was retired from the election on Wednesday 28 September.

The VEC was required to temporarily relocate its election office for the Loddon Shire Council election due to a flooding event in the Serpentine area during the nomination period. The VEC activated its business continuity planning and closely liaised with council officers and the Department of Environment, Land, Water and Planning to regularly monitor accessibility to Serpentine. The VEC implemented responsive communication to ensure that prospective candidates were alerted to the change in location for lodging their nomination. The office in Serpentine re-opened when the flood waters receded. There was no impact on the election.

The VEC notes section 31 of the LG Act allows Governor in Council, on the recommendation of the Minister, to change election day in respect of one or more councils in particular circumstances, including a natural disaster, but can only do so before the close of nominations. The circumstances experienced in Loddon Shire were managed without taking the more significant action of moving the election date. However, consideration of further provisions in the LG Act to enable management of similar situations without the need to move the election date is recommended (see Recommendation 3).

See Appendix 4 for a full list of candidates at the close of nominations.

Uncontested elections

Councils experience uncontested elections when the number of candidates at the close of nominations is equal to the number of vacancies within the electorate.

Across the 78 councils, a total of 38 elections across 19 councils were uncontested. Four of the uncontested elections were for attendance elections and the remaining 34 were for postal elections. This includes the elections for Towong Shire Council and Mansfield Shire Council, which were wholly uncontested.

There were no failed elections, where the number of candidates was fewer than the number of vacancies.

Ballot draw

A ballot draw is conducted for all contested elections to determine the order in which the candidates' names appear on the ballot paper. All ballot draws were conducted by the Returning Officer and held in the election office after the close of nominations. The ballot draw is conducted electronically using the VEC's random ballot draw application within its election management system. The application randomly lists candidate names in the order they will appear on the ballot paper.

Statements, photos and indications of preferences

For postal elections, candidates were able to submit a candidate statement of up to 200 words (this was increased from 150 words in 2012 for candidates excluding the Melbourne City Council Leadership Team and Councillor grouped candidates that remained at 250 words) along with a photograph for the VEC to include in the ballot pack mailed to voters. Candidate statements were published and printed exactly as submitted with no corrections to grammar or spelling by the VEC. All statements were quality assured by VEC staff in a timely manner which ensured that publication and printing was within deadlines. A total of 1,357 candidates (71.08%) who submitted a candidate statement completed their statement using the VEC's online candidate helper (66% in 2012). 223 candidates did not submit a candidate statement.

On 31 August 2016, the Victorian Legislative Council disallowed the regulation prescribing indications of preferences at local government postal elections. As a result, candidates were no longer able to lodge their indication of preferences for inclusion in the ballot pack mailed to voters. This produced an increase in candidates using their statement as a tool to indicate their preferences to voters. This caused confusion with some candidates who believed that the inclusion of preference information within the statement was not consistent with the intent of the Legislative Council motion (see Recommendation 1).

Given its specific legislation, Melbourne City Council candidates were able to submit preferences and were able to utilise the candidate helper to do so. Registered Groups for the Melbourne City Council Councillor election were able to submit up to two tickets detailing how they would like their preferences allocated for voters who chose to vote for their group above the line.

Candidate Questionnaires

The Regulations introduced a candidate questionnaire which included a set of prescribed questions that each candidate was invited to respond to. The completed questionnaires were accessible to voters on the VEC website and available in election offices. The questionnaire sought information from candidates relating to their experience and training applicable to the role of a councillor and whether they were endorsed by a registered political party.

Candidates for both postal and attendance elections were invited to complete the questionnaire. Candidate questionnaires closed at 12 noon on Wednesday 21 September 2016. A total of 761 questionnaires (36%) were completed via the VEC's online candidate helper. 170 candidates did not submit a questionnaire.

The VEC conducted research into the opinions of voters on the usefulness of the candidate questionnaire. Many voters expressed a view that the information contained within the questionnaire was insufficient. More information on this evaluation can be found in section 8.2 and Recommendation 2.

Candidate teams and groups – Melbourne City Council

A pair of candidates standing jointly for the office of Lord Mayor and Deputy Lord Mayor may make a joint request to the Returning Officer that their names appear on the ballot paper together with a team name. Such requests must be received by 12 noon on the second day after nomination day. By the 12 noon deadline on Thursday 22 September 2016 all seven teams had submitted and registered a team name.

Two or more candidates nominating in the Melbourne City Council Councillor election may make a joint request to the Returning Officer to have their names grouped together on the ballot paper with a specific group name. Registration of a group allows the group to register up to two group voting tickets; upon ticket registration the group receives a square above-the-line on the ballot paper. Candidate group and group name registration closed at 12 noon on Thursday 22 September 2016. By the deadline, 14 groups had registered and three candidates remained ungrouped.

How to vote cards (attendance elections)

The Regulations provide that candidates at attendance elections are able to register how-to-vote cards (HTVCs) for distribution within 400 metres of a voting centre during early voting, or during voting hours on election day.

In accordance with the Regulations, candidates were able to register HTVCs from Wednesday 21 September until 12 noon Friday 14 October 2016. A total of 438 HTVCs were registered by candidates standing in contested elections for the six attendance elections.

As required by legislation the names of the candidate, person or organisation for whom HTVCs were registered were published on the VEC's website.

Rolls for candidates

Once nominations closed, the VEC used its data exchange server to distribute roll data to candidates who nominated in contested wards. Candidates obtained access to the server by way of an email invitation which enabled them to download the roll data from the data exchange facility. The email also included a privacy declaration that the candidate must agree to in order to access the information.

A total of 904 candidates downloaded roll data from the data exchange facility, most doing so on Tuesday 20 September 2016. The new method of distribution was significantly more secure, convenient and resource smart than at previous elections where CD ROMs were produced and distributed.

7.7 ELECTION MATERIAL AND PRODUCTS

The VEC has developed an extensive suite of products to support the conduct of local government postal and attendance elections as well as products specific to the Melbourne City Council elections. Whilst ensuring all products comply with the requirements of the LG Act and CoM Act, they have been designed to be as simple and informative as possible for the voter. Where possible, product generation has been fully automated to allow the VEC to meet the tight timelines for printing and dispatch of the products.

Ballot packs (postal)

During the conduct of a postal election, the Returning Officer must send or deliver ballot material to each voter on the voters roll who is entitled to vote at the election. The ballot material mailed to voters included:

- a postal vote declaration envelope
- a ballot paper and joined candidate statements product that included instructions about how to vote correctly and notice of how and when the completed ballot paper must be returned
- a prepaid return envelope.

See Appendix 5 for a sample ballot pack

The ballot pack for the Melbourne City Council elections differed to other postal elections and contained: a postal declaration envelope; two single ballot papers; a booklet containing Leadership Team statements, photos and preferences; a booklet for the Election of Councillors containing, statements from candidates, photos, group voting tickets and preferences for ungrouped candidates; a prepaid return envelope; and an information wrap that described the products included in the ballot pack.

Multi-language leaflets were also included as standard in the ballot pack for all metropolitan councils (excluding Melbourne City Council where languages were printed inside the Leadership Team and Councillor booklets). Multi-language leaflets were optional for regional councils, 16 regional councils included this option in their ballot material.

EasyVote letters (attendance)

As required by legislation, the VEC sent personally addressed EasyVote letters (voter notices) to all voters for contested attendance elections. A total of 551,329 EasyVote letters were dispatched for the six attendance elections on 23 September, two weeks earlier in the election timeline than in 2012.

The letters provided ward-specific information regarding the time and venues where voters could cast their vote on election day or at an early voting centre. The notice also included information about postal voting, an electorate map showing ward boundaries and the location of voting centres. Telephone numbers were provided for the telephone enquiry service and the National Relay Service for people who are deaf, hearing impaired and/or speech impaired, as well as the VEC's website address and telephone numbers for the multi-language interpreting service.

See Appendix 6 for a sample EasyVote letter for voters of attendance elections.

Uncontested leaflets

A black and white leaflet was mailed to voters in uncontested wards, informing them that their election was uncontested and they were not required to vote for that election at the 2016 local government elections. The leaflet provided the name/s of the candidate/s who had nominated and would be declared elected. The leaflet was sent to reduce potential confusion among voters who were aware of the election, but did not receive a ballot pack or EasyVote letter in the mail. Some 136,042 uncontested leaflets were produced and mailed to voters in uncontested wards.

Where a council's election was entirely uncontested, as was the case for Mansfield and Towong Shire Councils, the uncontested election leaflet was replaced by a notice in the council's nominated local press.

See Appendix 6 for a sample uncontested leaflet.

Design and print of ballot papers

As for previous elections in subdivided municipalities, the ballot paper for each ward remained a different colour to other wards within the same council. This assisted during the compilation of ballot material and helped ensure that voters received the correct ballot material. The VEC's ballot material automation system was redeveloped to include all products for Melbourne City Council elections in addition to all other products required for other councils.

The VEC also made updates to templates to incorporate the legislative change which extended the period for the return of the ballot material.

Production and mail out of ballot material for postal elections

The printing of ballot material for a round of general elections is a large and complex task. The VEC's contracted printing company has extensive experience in elections, having been engaged by the VEC for many major electoral events over many years. Their experience and expertise minimises risk to the organisation as their processes are proven.

The Regulations require the VEC to post ballot packs to voters at least 15 days prior to the close of voting. This places significant pressure on print production and mailing.

As in previous years, the VEC utilised direct extraction of ballot paper and candidate statement data from EMS using Extensible Mark-up Language (XML) into pre-prepared ballot paper and candidate statement templates. Each template was specifically coded to accept the number of candidates that had nominated for a particular election. This process ensured a speedier turnaround of ballot paper and candidate statement print-ready artwork that included the ballot paper, candidate statements and photographs. A similar process was used for the production of the Leadership Team and Councillor ballot papers and candidate statement/ticket booklets for the Melbourne City Council elections. Implementation of this process in 2016 meant that the artwork for all postal elections was lodged for printing by 7.00 pm on 23 September 2016 except for the three larger products for councils with a higher number of nominations.

As required by the Regulations, ballot packs were mailed randomly over three days; Tuesday 4 – Thursday 6 October 2016 with no more than 35% being mailed out each day. Over the three day period, the VEC mailed out 3,715,881 ballot packs for the 70 contested postal elections.

With total enrolment figures increasing from one election to the next, the timeline pressure for the preparation of ballot material is reaching a critical point. Consideration should be given to increasing the legislated period for the preparation of ballot material between the last lodgement date for products from candidates, to the first date of the mailout, at least 15 days prior to the close of voting. See Recommendation 7.

For the Melbourne City Council elections, VEC staff supervised direct deliveries of ballot packs to a number of high-rise dwellings and law chambers within the City of Melbourne.

Return of ballot paper envelopes

Completed ballot paper envelopes were returned to each election office using Australia Post's priority paid service. The VEC's arrangements with Australia Post allowed returned mail to be pre-sorted into wards where applicable, prior to receipt by Returning Officers.

Postal election Returning Officers received 2,328,661 returned ballot paper envelopes by the close of voting at 6.00 pm on 21 October 2016.

For the 2016 local government elections, the Regulations allowed for the Returning Officer to admit returned ballot paper envelopes received by post before 12 noon on 28 October 2016 if satisfied that the vote had been posted prior to the close of voting. Returning Officers received 421,109 returned ballot paper envelopes during the extended postal vote receipt period for postal elections. In 2012, the VEC received 107,611 ballot paper envelopes during the first three business days after the close of voting, which under the previous regulations, were not admitted for counting.

In total, Returning Officers admitted 2,749,770 ballot paper envelopes to extraction and counting processes across all postal elections. Any ballot paper envelopes not signed by the voter or, in the case of unenrolled declaration votes, where an entitlement was not found for the person, were not admitted to the extraction and count.

Figure 5 shows the pattern of ballot paper envelopes returned for postal elections between day one of the mailout on 4 October to the close of the extended postal vote receipt period on Friday 28 October.

7.8 VOTING CENTRES FOR ATTENDANCE ELECTIONS

Voting centres are appointed by the Returning Officer and require a comprehensive audit to ensure each is suitable for the setup and operation of a voting centre. The number of voting centres appointed for attendance elections is determined by the Returning Officer on a needs basis.

There were 122 voting centres established on election day for the six attendance elections. In addition, the VEC established 13 early voting centres (at least one in each council area) which operated between 9.00 am and 5.00 pm each weekday from Wednesday 21 September to the close of early voting at 6.00 pm on Friday 21 October 2016. Extended opening hours applied on 20 October (9.00 am – 8.00 pm).

Accessibility of voting centres

All venues used by the VEC undergo an accessibility audit. The VEC uses an audit tool to apply a consistent and accurate accessibility assessment to each voting centre. Returning Officers for attendance elections were provided with instruction and support in the use of the audit tool to ensure a clear understanding of the considerations necessary when choosing venues suitable for use as a voting centre and to accurately record accessibility measures.

All voting centres were assessed for accessibility prior to the voting period and rated as Independent Wheelchair Access (IWA); Assisted Wheelchair Access (AWA); or Limited or No Wheelchair Access (LNWA). Accessibility details for each venue were published on the VEC's website and in the EasyVote letters.

Of the 122 voting centres used on election day across the six councils 17 were rated IWA, 54 AWA and 51 LNWA. The VEC continues to have difficulty finding election day voting centres that are fully accessible. Greater Dandenong City Council had the highest number with nine venues out of a total of 26 being rated IWA. Port Phillip City Council had no venues out of its 14 established voting centres rated as IWA. This was followed closely by Banyule and Yarra City Councils which had just one voting centre rated as IWA each.

Postal voting and early voting at attendance elections

Voters at attendance elections had the opportunity to vote by post or in person prior to election day.

Voters were able to apply for a postal vote to the Returning Officer either online or by paper application. Applications submitted online did not require the signature of the voter, instead voters were required to complete a security question and answer with their application. To authenticate the voters returned ballot material, the question was printed on the voters' declaration envelope and the voter provided the answer to the question for confirmation as to their identity.

Where a postal vote application was accepted, the Returning Officer sent the voter a ballot paper, voting instructions, a postal vote envelope and a reply-paid return addressed envelope. The mail-out commenced as soon as ballot material was available after the close of nominations and continued until the close of applications at 12 noon on Thursday 20 October. Voters registered as General Postal Voters were automatically sent ballot material once it became available.

There was a total of 49,785 postal votes issued across the six attendance elections. Of those, 37,563 were returned and accepted, by Friday 21 October. A further 6,861 were received during the extended postal vote receipt period, to 12 noon on Friday 28 October.

Early voting facilities were provided to voters at attendance elections from Wednesday 21 September to 6.00 pm on Friday 21 October. The VEC was responsible for the establishment of each early voting centre and provided all furniture, equipment and staff.

There was a total of 13 early voting centres established throughout metropolitan Melbourne with a total of 84,652 early votes cast across the six attendance elections.

Figure 6 shows the number of postal and early votes counted at attendance elections for 2016 in comparison to previous local government elections.

	Total votes counted	Postal votes counted	Early votes	Number of attendance elections
2016	343,731	41,941 (12.20%)	84,652 (24.63%)	6
2012	393,146	26,794 (6.82%)	80,864 (20.57%)	8
2008	558,557	29,781 (5.33%)	98,643 (17.66%)	9

As indicated in Figure 6, there was a significant rise in the number of postal votes in 2016. This increase may largely be attributable to the introduction of an online postal voting facility, where voters could apply for a postal vote online.

7.9 ELECTRONIC ROLL MARKING

As implemented in 2012, the VEC again utilised electronic roll marking to mark voters on the roll at attendance elections. All early voting centres and election day voting centres were provided with netbooks that were wirelessly connected to the VEC network using Next-G. The netbooks had a timestamp function enabling comprehensive tracking of voting behaviour. Electronic roll marking also eliminates the possibility of a person voting more than once and the need to scan paper rolls after election day.

On election day, 676 netbooks were deployed across 122 voting centres. A total of 215,244 votes were issued to voters whose names were marked off the roll using the netbooks at voting centres on election day.

7.10 SERVICES FOR PEOPLE WHO ARE BLIND OR HAVE LOW VISION

The VEC worked with Vision Australia and Blind Citizens Australia to provide key election information at the enrolment and voting phases of the 2016 council elections. The information provided to the 4,479 people on the membership lists was provided in Digital Accessible Information System /CD/audio, braille, large print and e-text formats.

The first communication in early August 2016 detailed election methods adopted by councils; voting entitlements; the VEC's 'opt-in' program for braille or large print ballot papers; information for those considering standing for elections and voting options if they were going to be away over the election period. A total of 109 people registered for large print and a further 41 registered for braille ballot papers.

The second communication in early October 2016 detailed the contents of ballot packs and how to vote correctly for postal elections; and information about voting in person, early voting and postal voting options for attendance elections.

The special format ballot packs included the required ballot paper(s), a declaration envelope and voting instructions in braille or large print. Candidate statements were provided for those requesting large print who were voting in postal elections. A pre-paid pre-addressed Australia Post satchel was also included for the return of the completed ballot material.

All braille products were produced by Vision Australia, which ensured that the instructions were written in a style appropriate for the formats. A total of 37 braille and 108 large print ballot packs were issued to voters.

To assist blind and low vision voters read election material, the VEC worked with Vision Australia so that a closed-circuit television monitor (CCTV) to magnify printed material was available at each of the election offices for those councils having attendance elections and at the Melbourne City Council election office.

7.11 PUBLIC EDUCATION AND OUTREACH CAMPAIGN

The VEC's Community Education Team partnered with community-based organisations to deliver a range of electoral inclusion initiatives including:

- delivery of electoral information sessions
- capacity-building training for carers and workers
- information resources and
- assisted voting services.

The VEC undertook major education and outreach campaigns in four areas.

Culturally and linguistically diverse (CALD) communities

The VEC's six CALD community educators (who together speak 16 languages) delivered 74 electoral information sessions – in community languages and in English – to a total of 1,672 participants.

The sessions were primarily delivered across metropolitan Melbourne, as well as the VEC facilitating sessions in Shepparton and Bendigo.

The session's content focused on increasing participants' knowledge around how to vote correctly and making their vote count. At the conclusion of most sessions, participants were asked to complete a 'mock' ballot paper, which gave the facilitators an indication of the participants understanding of the information presented. The percentage of correct completion of ballot papers ranged from 84% to 100% with an average of 99% over all sessions.

Further to these sessions, the VEC consulted with CALD community members and service providers for the establishment of the following resources:

- 1,400 community information kits distributed to local councils and community-based organisations and made available on the VEC's website
- information about voting in attendance and postal elections, which was translated into 20 languages (included on the VEC's website and distributed to community learning centres and the VEC's CALD community networks)
- targeted communication reminding voters from Arabic and Chinese communities about voting in the 2016 local government elections (placed in community language newspapers).

People experiencing homelessness

The VEC partnered with the Council to Homeless Persons Peer Education Support Program (PESP), members of whom assisted the VEC in its electoral outreach work in the lead up to the 2016 elections.

In the four months prior to the elections:

- 12 enrolment sessions were conducted across metropolitan service providers and homeless agencies
- 43 people were enrolled or updated their details
- 53 people requested ballot pack redirections to their service agency
- 13 assisted voting sessions were conducted, during which 32 people were supported.

During the compulsory voting enforcement phase, the VEC delivered targeted communications to the homelessness sector regarding what to do if service users, who are experiencing homelessness, received an Apparent Failure to Vote Notice or non-voting infringement.

As for previous general elections, individuals experiencing homelessness who are enrolled through the VEC's engagement programs were automatically excused from voting.

People with disability

The VEC initiated a partnership with Carers Victoria to address the gap in carers' understanding of voting entitlements for people with disabilities. The VEC facilitated 12 information sessions that were delivered to 156 community members in metropolitan Melbourne and regional Victoria. Information at these sessions was based around the voting entitlements, the electoral system in Victoria and how to vote correctly.

There were 32 face-to-face sessions which were delivered to 444 carers over a period of four months.

The VEC website also published an eLearning module containing the same information for those carers who were unable to attend the workshop (attracting 648 page views and 357 unique page views).

Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities

In the months leading up to the local government elections, the VEC's Aboriginal Communities Officer delivered five electoral information sessions to 82 participants in regional Victoria. The VEC also participated in two community events – one in Bendigo and one in Dandenong. Over 5,000 community members were in attendance at these events.

A culturally specific Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander community information kit was distributed to 70 community-based organisations throughout the State. The kit consisted of a poster, resource order form, and an Easy English Guide and encouraged the community to enrol and vote at the 2016 elections.

7.12 COMMUNICATION CAMPAIGN

The VEC provided each council with a comprehensive communication campaign developed to meet legislative requirements and increase voter awareness and participation in the elections. The VEC's Communication Team coordinated the development and placement of advertising, development and distribution of media releases and preparation of election information for the VEC's website. Each council's advertising and communication campaign comprised the following basic components:

- council-specific statutory press advertisements
- State-wide advertising
- direct mail pieces
- council-specific election information on the VEC website
- council-specific media releases

- council-specific communication toolkits provided for use by councils
- communication services for voters with special needs
- a range of optional communication products.

Statutory advertising

The Returning Officer is required to place four statutory notices during the conduct of a local government election:

- notice of entitlement date
- notice of election
- voting details
- declaration of results.

The content of the advertisements is guided by legislation. This has resulted in the VEC adopting an information-based rather than a motivational approach to press advertising. The large amount of content required poses a challenge to effective communication so, to increase reader attention and recall, each press advertisement was themed. Press advertisements for the Melbourne City Council General Elections were themed 'Your Melbourne. Your Vote.' For all other elections, the VEC used the theme 'Your Council. Your Vote.'

Additionally, each council was offered the option of including a 'voting reminder' advertisement which ran in the week prior to election day.

More than 1,110 statutory advertisements (including reminder advertising) were placed across the local government elections program.

All statutory notices require placement of a public notice. Section 3(1) of the LG Act defines a public notice as a notice that is published in 'a newspaper that is generally circulating within the municipal district of the Council'. The readership of hardcopy newspapers, particularly suburban newspapers is on the decline. The VEC recommends consideration is given to amending section 3(1) of the LG Act to account for declining newspaper consumption and replacing it with other mechanisms for increasing awareness of public notices, particularly in relation to entitlement provisions for non-citizen resident ratepayers, corporations and occupiers of properties with rates responsibility and located within the local government area. See Recommendation 6.

See Appendix 7 for samples of the council specific advertisements.

State-wide advertising

At a high level, all eligible voters need to know that local government elections are happening. Typically, young people, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities, people experiencing homelessness, those whose first language is not English, and people living with a disability generally need the most attention.

A budget ($400,000 including GST) for the state-wide campaign excluded TV advertising and provided for a short burst of awareness primarily focused on the digital/online component, complemented by CALD print and radio.

The VEC fully committed to a 15% regional spend requirement and doubled the 5% CALD placement requirement.

All digital material was developed in-house.

The concept underpinning the campaign was a 'at street level' concept. This was based on the following insights:

- councils are the local layer of government in Australia that people interface with on a day-to-day basis
- local councils deal with local issues—rubbish and recycling, roads and footpaths, libraries and community centres, child care, pet registrations, sport and recreation
- the majority of voters enrol for their home address
- voting in local council elections takes place at the household and local level, through postal ballots or voting centres close to residences
- the street is the common factor across all Victorian councils—a focal point of daily life, governance and elections
- the community focus of council elections, being literally close to home, contributes to a positive feeling around these events and
- the concept of 'where you live' brings home the impact of the election, which deals with local, street-level issues in your council area.

Social media campaign

Using paid promotion on Facebook, the VEC targeted voters by geographic area, CALD background and topics of interest.

This paid advertising was supported by a defined timeline of social media posts on Facebook and Twitter designed to cover each of the key messages of the communication campaign, and to seed conversation about the democratic process.

Average paid reach on Facebook was 41,020.

Average organic reach was 1,511.

For the first time, the VEC produced and used a series of animated videos focused on enrolment, postal and attendance elections to increase awareness, understanding and prompt requests for further information. A short 15 second version for enrolment was produced with all others running for one minute in duration.

See Appendix 8 for examples of the State-wide advertising campaign.

VEC website

The VEC website featured comprehensive information about local government elections generally, as well as specific information for each local council's election. Content was updated at each phase of the election cycle including information about:

- enrolment
- inspecting and objecting to errors in the voters' roll
- nominating for election

Users were able to search for their local government area based on their address and, for attendance elections, use an interactive map to find voting centres. The same search feature could also be used to find election results for the user's enrolled area.

During the period of the communication campaign (5 August to 4 November 2016) the VEC's website had 5,038,457 page views with 3,696,383 unique page views and 666,351 unique users. A total of 43.54% of users used a desktop or laptop computer to access the website, 42.87% used a mobile and 13.59% used a tablet. This is a dramatic shift from four years ago where nearly three quarters of all users accessed the site from a desktop.

Key voting information on webpages could also be converted to Easy English on the page.

Vic Election Alerts

Vic Election Alerts was a digital communication initiative designed to provide electors with enrolment and voting reminders for the 2016 council elections. The service was promoted on Facebook, Twitter and in the media generally (publicity and advertising). Electors were required to register, via the VEC website, their email address or mobile number (or both) to receive alerts.

In total, 1,933 people registered for alerts, comprising 772 mobile alerts, 529 email alerts and 632 registrations for both email and mobile alerts. Five alerts were sent altogether from 22 August to 22 October. SMS open rates remained consistently high at over 95% for the entire campaign, whereas the email open rate started higher and fell towards election day - with an average open rate of around 68% over the campaign (Government average open rate is 26%).

The VEC surveyed those who used the service and found that 84% of respondents found the service useful, more than 95% wanted the VEC to keep their details in case the service was continued and up to two thirds of respondents said that they probably wouldn't have remembered to vote without the reminders.

Media relations

The strategic approach driving the media relations program was coordinated information sharing, focusing on the provision of authorised, accurate, traceable, consistent and timely information to effectively inform stakeholders and manage potential issues. Media engagement was focused on ensuring an accurate representation of the electoral process, with a focus on responsiveness when dealing with the media.

The VEC organised a media briefing at the outset of the communication campaign, with an in-person session on 1 August 2016 and a follow-up webinar for satellite media and council communication staff two days later.

Key statistics:

- 479 media enquiries and interview requests handled
- 531 media releases distributed
- 161 radio releases downloaded for broadcast
- $611,781 equivalent advertising value from earned media
- 4.04 out of 5 ('very satisfied') average rating by media personnel regarding the VEC's media services.

The VEC distributed a total of 531 releases during the election period. A total of 107 online articles were directly generated from VEC releases (translated and radio releases not included). The vast majority of these pick-ups related to council-specific releases in regional and suburban outlets.

Additional products and services

The VEC provided several additional products and services to complement the communication campaigns, which were not costed back to councils.

Auslan video

The VEC produced an updated Auslan video for the local government elections in 2016. Signed by an Auslan interpreter and with optional subtitles, the video contained information explaining voting and enrolling entitlements, nomination procedures and voting procedures.

Easy English information booklets

Election information was produced in Easy English with assistance from Scope Victoria for people with low English literacy, and learning and cognitive disabilities. The VEC distributed around 3,000 community information kits, which contained either postal or attendance booklets with other collateral to community information centres and migrant resource centres.

The series of booklets included:

- Vote in Local Council Postal Elections
- Vote in Local Council Attendance Elections
- Vote in the Melbourne City Council Postal Elections

The booklets were also available on the VEC's website.

7.13 ELECTION RESULTS

Close of voting

For postal elections, close of voting was Friday 21 October 2016 at 6.00 pm. For attendance elections, close of voting was Saturday 22 October 2016 at 6.00 pm.

The Regulations introduced a 5 day postal vote receipt period where votes were able to be admitted for postal and attendance elections if the Returning Officer was satisfied that the voter completed the declaration before the close of voting and the vote was received by the Returning Officer before the end of the postal vote receipt period. The close of the extended postal vote period was on 12 noon on Friday 28 October 2016.

For postal elections the extraction of ballot papers commenced after the close of voting and was finalised at the end of the extended period. Where space was restricted, the extraction of ballot papers for postal elections occurred at a separate location to the count.

Counting

Due to the extended postal vote receipt period, the VEC implemented a strategy where votes were categorized into two separate groups. The first group of votes were those received up until the close of voting from voters who had not requested replacement ballot material. First preference counts were completed for this group from election weekend and into the following week. The second group of votes included the remaining votes received by the end of the postal vote receipt period and were counted from 12 noon Friday 28 October 2016 onwards. Preference distributions could not be conducted until all first preference counts were complete and computer counted results could not be calculated until all ballot papers to be included in the count had been data entered into the VEC's computer count application. All manual and computer counts were concluded by Sunday 30 October 2016.

Manual counts

Manual counts took place for single councillor wards and occurred in 68 of the 222 contested wards for the 2016 local government elections. Eight councils consisted completely of single councillor wards and were counted manually within the local council area.

Computer counts

Computer counts were conducted for elections in unsubdivided municipalities and for wards with multi-councillor vacancies (where a proportional representation count is required). Computer counts were conducted across 49 councils for a total of 154<sup>10</sup> contested elections.

The computerised counts involved preferences from ballot papers being entered into the VEC's computer count application, by trained data operators, in the presence of scrutineers.

Computerised counts took place from Tuesday 25 October 2016 with the final counts concluding on Sunday 30 October 2016. Calculations were conducted progressively as data entry was completed after the close of the postal vote receipt period. The calculation is a public event and candidates, scrutineers and other interested parties were invited to attend.

The VEC prefers to use venues such as colleges and universities for the conduct of computer counts as the infrastructure and hardware required for the count is pre-established. Such locations usually have appropriate security measures and controlled access which is imperative for scrutineers and counting staff.

The introduction of the extended postal vote receipt period caused challenges in respect to securing count locations for a prolonged period. Some venues (mainly in the Metropolitan region) were not available for this longer period. As a result, the VEC opted to initiate a number of computer count models. Some smaller councils i.e. West Wimmera, Hindmarsh etc. progressively conducted data entry at the election office using the established infrastructure. Additional computers were established at two election offices (Hume and Melton) for their computerised counts. A number of single council computer count centres were established at schools and colleges and six centralised computer count venues were established to support the counts for 25 councils.

As noted in the 2012 report and expected for the 2016 elections, the ability to source a location with a computer laboratory became increasingly difficult. To address this, the VEC is projecting the use of further centralised computer count locations in the metropolitan area for future local government elections.

Recounts

Clause 13 of Schedule 3 of the LG Act states that a recount of votes can be actioned at the decision of the Returning Officer or at the written request of a candidate which is accepted by the Returning Officer at any time before a candidate has been declared elected.

For the 2016 local government elections, there was one full recount conducted for the Wyndham City Council, Harrison Ward election, which was initiated by the VEC. The final margin between the last elected candidate and the last unsuccessful candidate was one. See Figure 7 for details of the recount.

As the original count for the Harrison Ward was conducted by computer, the recount was also conducted using the same method of counting. A recount involves a full review of all ballot material with all ballot papers being recounted.

As a full recount was ordered and conducted, preferences on all admitted ballot papers are re-entered into the computer application, which saves the information and checks that the re-entered preferences are the same as those entered for the same ballot paper at the original count. If there are no changes, the original record is maintained on the database. If there are changes, the operator is alerted to check the data entry, and if confirmed, the original preferences for that ballot paper are overwritten with the confirmed preferences. A full review of all informal ballot papers was also conducted by the returning officer, any ballot papers previously flagged as informal but determined by the Returning Officer at the recount to be formal were included in data entry.

Council	Wyndham City Council
Ward	Harrison Ward
Manual or computer	Computer
Recount type	Full
Original critical margin	1
Final critical margin	8
Total ballot papers	37,237
Change in the critical margin	+7

In addition to the Wyndham recount, there were 14 formal requests for recounts by candidates. Each request was assessed by senior VEC officers giving careful consideration to:

- the occurrence of close margins at critical points during the distribution of preferences
- the value and number of ballot papers involved at those points
- any procedural or system error or failure that may have interrupted or interfered with the counting process
- the accessibility of the counting process for scrutineers to properly perform their responsibilities

From the 14 requests, the VEC ordered three partial recounts and declined the remainder. In all cases, the margins were considered so significant that in the absence of other factors, a recount would not give rise to a change in the result of the election. A partial recount is when there is a recheck of all informal ballot papers. At the completion of the recheck, the Returning Officer may decide that it is unnecessary to proceed to a full recount.

The VEC's interpretation of what constitutes a close election result is informed by the VEC's historical experience at recounts conducted previously. This has shown limited variation occurs when comparing the final or critical recounted margin to the original count. In particular, the greatest variation in the critical margin for recounts conducted by the VEC since 2008, where counting has been by computer data entry, has been seven. This was for the Wyndham City Council, Harrison ward election in 2016. The average variation in the critical margin across nine computer recounts conducted since 2008 is two.

The VEC will provide further resources to candidates and the broader electorate for future elections so that expected variances between original counts and recounts, given no other contributing factors, are available to inform recount requests.

7.14 DECLARATION OF RESULTS

The results for all elections were declared on or by Friday 4 November 2016. A table showing the successful candidates and declaration dates can be found at Appendix 9.

In accordance with clause 23(2)(b) of Schedule 2 of the LG Act, the Electoral Commissioner advised the Minister for Local Government, of the declared results for all 2016 local government elections on 11 November 2016.

7.15 REFUND OF NOMINATION DEPOSITS

In accordance with clause 24 of Schedule 2 of the LG Act, candidates are eligible to receive a refund of their $250 nomination fee if:

- the candidate is declared elected or
- the total number of first preference votes in the candidate's favour is at least equal to 4% of the total number of first preference votes in favour of all the candidates in the election.

For the Melbourne City Council Election of Councillors, candidates who were members of a group received a refund of their nomination fee if the members of the group received more than 4% of the total number of valid first preference votes cast in the election as per clause 18 of Schedule 1 of the CoM Act.

Of 2,149<sup>11</sup> candidates, a total of 1,489 were eligible to receive a refund of their nomination fee resulting in the VEC issuing a total amount of $372,250 by way of refund. A total of 659 candidates did not meet the above provisions resulting in a total amount of $164,750 being forfeited to local councils.

7.16 VOTER TURNOUT

Voter turnout is measured as the number of formal and informal votes counted as a percentage of voters on the roll.

<sup>11</sup> This number includes 14 candidates who withdrew their nomination prior to the close of nominations.

At the local government elections in 2016, voter turnout for all those entitled to vote (excluding elections for Melbourne City Council's Leadership Team) was 72.15%. The rate for postal elections (73.75%) was higher than that for attendance elections (61.49%). Turnout has increased for postal elections however has decreased for attendance elections compared with 2012 turnout figures.

See Figure 8 and Appendices 10 and 11 for further details on voter turnout.

	Turnout %			Informality %
	2008	2012	2016	2008	2012	2016
All Councils	74.68	70.96	72.15	4.99	5.51	6.29
Attendance	70.03	63.62	61.49	9.90	10.09	8.44
Postal	75.96	72.53	73.75	3.75	4.66	6.02

7.17 VOTER PARTICIPATION BY ENROLMENT CATEGORY

Analysis of voter participation for the different enrolment categories shows that participation is higher for voters who are enrolled on the Electoral Commissioner's List, for which voting is compulsory (77.17%) compared to voters enrolled on the Chief Executive Officer's List (CEO List) (49.09%), where voting is not compulsory<sup>12</sup>. Participation for CEO List voters drops to 13.5% for attendance elections.

Participation for voters aged 70 years or older is higher for postal elections than for attendance elections.

These observations may provide insight into future policy development for the mechanisms of enrolling voters with CEO List entitlement and their compulsion to vote. See Recommendation 10.

Voter participation statistics are included in Appendix 14.

7.18 INFORMAL VOTING RATES

A vote is classified as informal when the voter does not complete the ballot paper in accordance with instructions or if their voting intention cannot be determined. Votes classified as informal cannot be admitted to a count.

The informal rate for the 2016 general elections was 6.29% which is an increase from the informality rate seen in 2012. The informality rate has continually increased over the last three general elections and the rate for attendance elections continues to be higher than that for postal elections.

The number of candidates contesting an election continues to influence informality rates. The number of candidates ranged from two to 41 for the 2016 elections and informality rates ranged from 2.14% to 16.82%.

See Figures 8 and 9, section 7.19 and Appendix 12 of this report.

Informal voting rates

The more candidates there were in an election, the higher the informal vote tended to be.

This can be measured by the correlation between the number of candidates and the informal voting rate, which was  $+0.828758^*$

This has been a consistent pattern since at least the 2005 council elections.

7.19 INFORMAL VOTING ANALYSIS

The VEC conducted a piece of research which sought to examine informal votes from the 2016 general elections to assess trends in the errors made on the ballot papers that are classified as informal.

Specifically, the VEC sought to learn whether most informal votes were accidental or the consequence of a deliberate decision to spoil the vote. The results of the analysis provide valuable information for future council elections.

The VEC chose seven elections from a wide range of municipalities. They included both metropolitan and rural councils, and municipalities with varying proportions of residents of CALD backgrounds. Five of the elections were conducted by postal voting, and two were attendance. When combined, the elections appeared to offer a representative cross-section of Victorian informal voters.

The key finding of the informal voting study was that more than two thirds (68.8%) of the informal votes were cast by voters who expressed a clear preference, but their vote could not be counted because of the formality rules in the Act. This pattern was particularly marked in the two elections with the most candidates.

See Recommendation 9 for the VEC's response to the findings of this analysis.

See Appendix 14 for the detailed results of the analysis.

7.20 COMPLAINTS

The VEC established a dedicated complaints team based at Head Office that handled all complaints received in writing. The complaints handling process was developed in consultation with local councils and the LGICI and all complaints were specific to the local government election period.

Complaints generally fell into two broad categories:

- the conduct of participants in the election - complaints about the conduct of candidates and other participants in the election (often where the complainant alleged inappropriate or illegal behaviour by another person or group associated with the election, at times alleging a breach of the LG Act or local laws).
- the administration of the election - complaints about the conduct of the election and services to voters.

There was a total of 515 complaints processed and responded to throughout the election period. Of these complaints, 6% were referred to relevant councils as they related to local laws and 23% were referred to the LGICI as they related to possible breaches of the LG Act.

The VEC committed to responding to each complaint within five working days<sup>13</sup>. The VEC's average response time was three working days.

7.21 APPLICATIONS TO THE MUNICIPAL ELECTORAL TRIBUNAL AND VICTORIAN CIVIL AND ADMINISTRATIVE TRIBUNAL

The LG Act establishes a Municipal Electoral Tribunal, which sits in the Magistrates' Court of Victoria, to consider applications for an inquiry to dispute a local council election. The Tribunal's powers are prescribed in the LG Act and applications for an inquiry must be lodged with the Magistrates' Court within 14 days from the declaration of the election being disputed. As the electoral service provider under the LG Act, the VEC appears before the Tribunal to respond to claims against the election process. Prior to the 2016 local government elections, the LG Act was also changed to allow the VEC to apply directly to the Tribunal to inquire into an election.

Following the 2016 local government elections, there were seven applications to the Municipal Electoral Tribunal:

An application disputing the Brimbank City Council, Taylors Ward election

The applicant requested a recount to be ordered by the Municipal Electoral Tribunal. The application was withdrawn following the first directions hearing, and did not proceed to a full hearing.

An application disputing the Casey City Council, Mayfield Ward election

The applicant requested a recount to be ordered by the Municipal Electoral Tribunal. The application was dismissed.

An application disputing the Manningham City Council, Koonung Ward election

The applicant requested the election to be void due to alleged irregularities in the information provided to resident ratepayers about the opportunity to apply to be enrolled. This application is still before the Tribunal.

An application disputing the Melbourne City Council, Election of Councillors

The applicant (the Electoral Commissioner) requested the Municipal Electoral Tribunal resolve a defect on the election associated with the ineligibility of a successful candidate. The application was partly upheld and partly dismissed at the directions hearing. The applicant applied to the Victorian Civil and Administrative Tribunal for a review of the Municipal Electoral Tribunal's decision. The application was upheld and the result of the election was recalculated with the ineligible candidate removed from the computer counting application.

The Electoral Commissioner became aware that candidate Brooke Wandin, who was declared elected for the Melbourne City Council Election of Councillors, was not eligible to stand as a candidate in that election.

Accordingly, the Commissioner applied to the Municipal Electoral Tribunal to confirm the ineligibility of candidate Wandin and to resolve any defect caused on the election by the inclusion of an ineligible candidate. The Tribunal accepted the Commissioner's submission that Ms Wandin was not qualified to be a candidate at the election and declared that she was not duly elected at the election. However, in the absence of other orders, section 46(3) of the LG Act applied and an extraordinary vacancy was created.

It remained the Commissioner's view that while the Tribunal addressed Ms Wandin's declaration, its decision neither addressed, nor resolved, the broader matters associated with the election. Consequently, the Electoral Commissioner applied to the Victorian Civil and Administrative Tribunal (VCAT) under section 48 of the LG Act to review the Municipal Electoral Tribunal's decision. Consistent with the Electoral Commissioner's submission, the VCAT ordered a recount of the ballot papers as if candidate Wandin had retired from the election before the declaration of results. This involved a recalculation of the preference distribution in accordance with Schedule 3 Part 4A and clause 8(8)(b) of Schedule 2 of the LG Act. As a result of the recalculation, The VCAT President Justice Garde AO RFD ordered that candidates Brooke Wandin and Michael Caiafa were not duly elected, and candidates Nicolas Frances Gilley and Susan Riley duly elected.

The decision of the VCAT was consistent with the remedy sought by the Electoral Commissioner and was consistent with the Common Law of Elections, including the relevant authorities set by the High Court of Australia.

During both proceedings, there was a level of uncertainty in respect to the ongoing status of the Wandin/Frances Gilley group in light of candidate Wandin's ineligibility.

See Recommendations 4 and 5.

An application disputing the Moonee Valley City Council, Myrnong Ward election

The applicant requested the eligibility of candidates be reviewed by the Municipal Electoral Tribunal. The Tribunal refined the scope of the application to focus on one candidate, and eventually found that the candidate was ineligible. Accordingly, the Tribunal ordered a recount of the ballot papers as if the candidate had retired from the election before the declaration of results. This involved a recalculation of the preference distribution in accordance with Schedule 3 Part 4A and clause 8(8)(b) of Schedule 2 of the LG Act. The recalculation did not change the result of the election.

After reviewing the Municipal Electoral Tribunal's reasons for decision, the Electoral Commissioner applied to the VCAT for a review of the decision. The grounds for the application was that the Tribunal had erred in its interpretation of the relevant statute. This application is still before the VCAT.

An application disputing the Stonnington City Council, North Ward election

The applicant requested a recount to be ordered by the Municipal Electoral Tribunal. The application was dismissed.

<sup>13</sup> Where a complaint required further investigation, an acknowledgement was sent to the complainant within five working days and regular updates thereafter.

An application disputing the Whittlesea City Council, South-East Ward election

The applicant requested an inquiry into allegedly misleading electoral material at the election. The application was dismissed.

7.22 ELECTION REPORTS TO COUNCILS

Pursuant to clause 14 of Schedule 3 of the LG Act, a report is to be prepared and submitted to the Chief Executive Officer of the relevant council on the conduct of the election within three months of election day.

Final reports for each election were sent to Chief Executive Officers on 20 January 2017. The reports included a certified record of ballot papers and declarations printed, issued, used, spoiled and returned as required by the legislation. Comprehensive details and statistics regarding election arrangements and outcomes were also included in the reports.

7.23 COMPULSORY VOTING ENFORCEMENT

The LG Amendment Act introduced the requirement that the VEC conduct compulsory voting enforcement for local government elections. In addition, the Electoral Commissioner may appoint a person as prosecution officer for the enforcement process. Previously the Chief Executive Officer of each council was responsible for the prosecution officer appointment.

Section 40 of the LG Act and Part 9 of the Regulations set out the provisions for compulsory voting enforcement. Section 19 of the CoM Act sets out the specific provisions for compulsory voting for Melbourne City Council elections.

The VEC's enforcement program involves three stages and during each stage, the VEC updates each council with statistical information regarding the number of apparent failure to vote notices issued, apparent non-voters who have replied, paid the infringement, been excused, not been excused or not replied to the notice, and the number of infringements referred to the Infringements Court by the VEC.

List of non-voters

Following the 2016 local government elections, the VEC commenced preliminary work in readiness for the production of the non-voter list. Postal vote declarations received after the cut-off date and voter information reports received during the elections – detailing voter excuses for not voting – were processed through the VEC's election management system between November and December. Commencing in mid-January 2017 the VEC prepared the list of non-voters for each council in accordance with the Regulations. This included the exclusion of any non-voters who are automatically exempt from compulsory voting, such as those voters over 70 years of age.

Enforcement process

The VEC commenced its enforcement program in early January 2017 for all 76 contested council elections. The first step in the process is required by the LG Act (or the CoM Act for the Melbourne City Council elections) and the remaining steps are relevant to provisions of the Infringements Act 2006. The process is as follows:

Apparent Failure-to-vote Notice

In early 2017 the VEC prepared and sent an apparent failure-to-vote notice to all voters who appeared not to have voted and were not excused or automatically exempt. The notices were dispatched progressively from 19 January to 8 February 2017. A total of 598,913 apparent failure-to-vote notices were mailed during this period and apparent non-voters had 28 days in which to reply.

Infringement Notice

Between 14 March and 6 April the VEC prepared and dispatched infringement notices to apparent non-voters whose excuse was not deemed sufficient or who did not respond to the apparent failure-to-vote notice. A penalty of $78 applied to this notice. Non-voters have 42 days in which to respond to the infringement notice. A total of 430,262 infringement notices were mailed during this period of which 350,035 were because of no response to the apparent failure to vote notice and 80,227 were due to the response given to the apparent failure to vote notice being deemed not sufficient.

During the infringement period, non-voters have a number of options under the Infringements Act 2006 including:

- pay the penalty in full
- seek a payment plan
- seek a review of the infringement - the legislation sets out the criteria on which a review can be requested and the process for conducting the review.

Penalties collected during the infringement period are reconciled and forwarded to councils. As of 18 May 2017 the VEC has collected $8,441,665 on behalf of councils.

Penalty Reminder Notice

At the close of the infringement period the VEC will prepare and send a Penalty Reminder Notice to those apparent non-voters who have not paid the penalty or had their infringement withdrawn. A penalty plus prescribed costs applies to this notice. The same options apply as for the infringement notice and non-voters have 42 days in which to respond. It is envisaged that the penalty reminder stage will conclude in late June 2017.

Lodgement with the courts

During the infringement and penalty reminder stages of enforcement non-voters can opt to have their matter heard directly in the Magistrates' Court. The VEC will commence proceedings against any such non-voters in two stages – at the conclusion of the infringement stage and again at the conclusion of the penalty reminder stage.

Once all stages of enforcement have been completed the VEC will produce final court files to lodge with the Infringements Court for prosecution.

Prosecution of non-voters at the Infringements and Magistrates' Courts involve significant time and resources. Matters referred to the Courts may not be resolved until well after the completion of the notice period, and can be expected to continue into subsequent financial years.

Figure 10: Compulsory voting enforcement statistics as of 19 May 2017
Apparent Failure to Vote Notices (AFTVN) issued as percentage of total enrolment.	13.53% (598,913)
Response rate to Apparent Failure to Vote Notice	41.55% (248,878)
Invalid responses as percentage of total responses	32.23% (80,227)
No response to AFTVN	58.45% (350,035)
Percentage of voters excused based on returned AFTVN	67.76% (168,651)
Infringement Notices issued as percentage of AFTVNs	71.84% (430,262)
Request for review received	5,187
Infringements withdrawn as a result of review	4,290

7.24 PUBLIC COMMENTARY ON THE NON-VOTER PROCESS

Compulsory voting enforcement is a high profile activity that can gain the attention of the media and other commentators. This has been experienced during enforcement for the 2016 local government elections where a number of constituents and media commentators raised concerns in early April with the VEC's compulsory voting enforcement process and more generally, their confidence in the postal voting system at the 2016 local government elections. A number of non-voters viewed their displeasure by way of print media, radio and various social media. The growth of social media since the 2012 local government elections seems to have affected the length of time issues have remained in the public domain, where matters previously dealt with routinely appear to have been perpetuated for much longer.

In the main, comments were from people who claimed to have voted in the elections, claiming that Australia Post did not deliver their vote in time or appeared to have lost their vote. Others insisted of having no knowledge of the elections or their obligation to vote. The VEC took all matters seriously and additionally, where able to identify the voters making comment in the public domain, fully investigated the claims made and provided clarifying information directly.

During investigations it became apparent that there was some confusion as to what constituted 'having voted'. Many assumed that because they had returned their ballot material, they had met their legal responsibilities, irrespective of when they returned their ballot material. Under the LG Act, a voter is only deemed to have voted if they have dated the postal vote envelope no later than the close of voting on 21 October and the vote is received by the Returning Officer by the close of the extended receipt period, 12 noon Friday 28 October 2017.

Additionally, a number of non-voters who believed they had voted within Councils conducting postal elections, had mistakenly recalled their experience voting at an attendance election, most likely the 2016 Federal election held on 2 July 2016.

It should be noted that all voters whose ballot material was received by the VEC by Friday 4 November 2017, seven days after the close of the extended postal vote receipt period and 14 days after the close of voting, were either marked as voted, or excused as part of the preliminary processing activity. They did not receive an Apparent Failure to Vote Notice, nor an Infringement Notice.

Inspection of a number of envelopes received after 4 November 2017 identified that the voter had completed the declaration after the close of voting so the delay in receipt by the VEC was not due to delays in the postal service.

See Appendix 13 for compulsory voting statistics and analysis.

7.25 INVOICING

As outlined in the Election Service Plan, the VEC is mindful of providing cost efficient election services to councils in Victoria.

The VEC acknowledges that there has been an inflationary pressure which has increased some of the costs associated with local government elections.

The VEC has previously outlined that cost increases have been evident with:

- communication and advertising costs
- Australia post rates
- rates of pay for election officials
- market rent for election office accommodation
- paper for the production of ballot material
- transport and logistics in relation to movement and delivery of equipment and ballot material and
- costs associated with travel.

As in previous local government elections, the VEC applied a marginal cost recovery model where all direct costs are recovered.

The VEC invoices in two main stages:

Stage 1

An invoice for the preparation of the voters' roll and the conduct of the election was sent to councils on 13 February 2017.

Stage 2

An invoice for the dispatch and processing of three non-voter notices is projected to be sent to councils mid-2017. Further invoices are issued where prosecution costs are incurred. These will be raised in following financial years.

8. Debrief and Evaluation

After each electoral event, the VEC leads an extensive debriefing and evaluation program which invites feedback from councils, voters, candidates and staff. All feedback received is considered during the preparation and planning of future local government elections.

8.1 COUNCILS

On 9 December 2016, councils were invited to complete an online evaluation survey following the conclusion of the local government elections. The survey took approximately 10 minutes with the aim being to assess the VEC's performance in the execution of the elections as well as obtain valuable feedback for future development of the VEC's local government elections program.

A total of 65 of 78 councils completed the survey. Of the respondents, approximately half of the councils attended the Service Plan briefing with most non-attendance being due to unavailability.

Councils highlighted that the preferred method of communication for future Election Service Plans is by online webinar or postal information. Of the respondents, 61 councils had reviewed the Election Service Plan and 57 had referred to the Plan during the 2016 local government elections program.

Most councils were either satisfied or extremely satisfied with the services provided by the VEC. A small number of councils expressed dissatisfaction around rising costs for electoral services within Victoria.

8.2 VOTERS

On 23 - 29 October 2016, the VEC placed advertisements in newspapers and on social media inviting feedback from Victorians aged 18 and over to complete an online survey on their experience in the 2016 local government elections. Figure 12 provides an overview of voter feedback

Candidates for these elections had the option of completing a prescribed questionnaire to enable voters to compare candidates' experience relevant to the role of a councillor. Candidates' answers were published on the VEC's website. Just over half of respondents (189 of 372) looked at the candidates' answers. When asked whether the candidates' answers gave useful information in deciding how to vote, 48 respondents replied that the answers did give useful information, while 45 disagreed. There were 90 comments in response to this question. Six respondents thought that the candidates' answers were useful in helping them decide how to vote, and nine respondents had mixed views. More than half (46) of the comments were very critical of the questionnaire and the candidates' answers, with typical comments being that the questions "were anodyne and easily dodged", and that "I did not find the answers particularly useful, as most were very similar". Many respondents found the question about endorsement by a political party to be insufficient, as it did not capture candidates who were members of, or affiliated with, a political party. These respondents argued that the candidates' answers to this question were thus misleading to voters. One respondent wrote that "The candidate questionnaire should have been in the ballot pack. Not all voters were aware the questionnaire existed and it was not mentioned within the ballot pack".

8.3 CANDIDATES

The VEC invited all candidates who stood for the 2016 general elections to complete a survey of their satisfaction with the services provided by the VEC. Figure 13 provides an overview of candidate feedback.

Returning Officers and their staff submitted written feedback reports to the VEC head office after election offices closed which outlined their experience and recommendations. There were also five debriefing sessions held State-wide where Returning Officers were invited to attend based on their location. 70 of 78 Returning Officers attended the debriefing sessions.

APPENDIX 8: FURTHER INFORMATION AND EXAMPLES OF STATEWIDE COMMUNICATION CAMPAIGN

State-wide advertising

Cost-per-click is a cost effective way to drive users to a landing page. This model ensured the VEC only paid for the number of clicks booked and acted as an awareness piece due to the sheer volume of impressions served to deliver out these clicks.

This activity occurred across Victoria's key online mastheads and across key mobile advertising networks.

Digital radio across popular streaming services Pandora and Spotify complimented the traditional radio activity.

Search activity within Google complemented the overall campaign by reaching those seeking information regarding the 2016 local government elections.

The campaign used a combination of brand keywords and generic keywords.

A targeted promoted Facebook campaign used short embedded video and rich imagery to educate and drive people to the website, and also acted as an engagement platform for questions and comments.

Standard display across the Google Display Network and regional papers online rounded out the digital component of the campaign.

To create broad awareness, radio advertisements across Victoria announced and reminded the Victorian community about the elections.

Ten second Traffic Network announcements supported the digital/social messages in the launch week and helped drive people to the website.

Two weeks prior to the elections 30 second commercials across all major metropolitan radio stations, as well as CALD radio stations, were placed, supported by the Traffic network activity.

APPENDIX 12: INFORMAL VOTE ANALYSIS

The following describes the process and findings of the VEC's analysis of informal votes from the 2016 general elections.

The VEC chose seven elections from a wide range of municipalities. They included both metropolitan and rural councils, and municipalities with varying proportions of residents of CALD backgrounds. Five of the elections were conducted by postal voting, and two were attendance. The number of candidates ranged from two to 41. There was also a wide range in the informal vote, from 2.14% to 16.82%. When combined, the elections appeared to offer a representative cross-section of Victorian informal voters.

The VEC used the same ten categories of informal votes as in its surveys of informal votes in past State Legislative Assembly (Lower House) elections.

- Blank (The bulk of these ballot papers were probably deliberately informal, though they might include ballot papers lodged by people who had difficulties with the whole voting process.)
- Numbers – 1 only
- Numbers – insufficient (Ballot papers lacking sufficient numbers to constitute a formal vote.)
- Numbers – apparently deliberate (Ballot papers including number sequences such as all '1', or '0', or '1', '10', '300', which indicate an intention to cast an informal vote.)
- Numbers – other (ballot papers in which all the boxes or all but one were numbered. Nearly all of these were informal as a result of an arithmetical error, such as skipping or duplicating a number.)
- Ticks/crosses – preference (Ballot papers indicating a clear preference for candidates through ticks or crosses for the number of candidates to be elected.)
- Ticks/crosses – apparently deliberate (Ballot papers with ticks or crosses in every square, indicating an intention to reject all the candidates.)
- Ticks/crosses – other
- Writing – apparently deliberate (Ballot papers with writing or drawings indicating opposition to all the candidates, including those with a cross over the whole paper.)
- Writing – other (ballot papers with vague scrawls or dots not indicating any intention.)

Some informal ballot papers included both numbering errors and writing. Such ballot papers were sorted to the category that made them informal – that is, the numbering errors.

The result of the informal vote analysis is detailed below. Further information is provided regarding each category analysed.

'Numbers – other' is the largest category – both overall and in five of the seven elections analysed. It is significant that the more candidates there were for an election, the higher the proportion of this type of informal votes. This pattern applied regardless of the nature of the local council or the type of election. In Wyndham City Council, Harrison Ward (41 candidates) and in Moynes Bay (17 candidates), some 56% of informal votes fell into the 'Numbers – other' category. These votes appeared overwhelmingly to be cast by voters who had made an effort to vote correctly, but made a numbering error while doing so.

'Numbers – insufficient' was another category that tended to rise with the number of candidates, from 0 in Wangaratta's Warby Ward (four candidates) to 19.3% in Wyndham's Harrison Ward. Many of these voters completed about half the boxes on the ballot paper but then appeared to give up. Others completed as many boxes as the number of councillors to be elected. For example, in the four-councillor Harrison Ward, there were many 1-4 votes.

In elections with few candidates, other categories came to the fore. In Wangaratta's Warby Ward, 'Numbers – deliberate' was the largest group, though it was small in terms of actual figures with only 17 voters choosing to vote this way. In Banyule's Ibbott Ward (two candidates), the largest category, with 30.8% of the total, was 'Ticks and crosses – preference'. In a two-candidate contest, the 'Numbers – 1 only' and 'Numbers – insufficient' cannot exist (because a '1 only' vote is a formal vote), which would increase the relative size of other categories. Even so, the high proportion of ticks and crosses is somewhat surprising, as this type of voting is usually associated with a high immigrant population. Possibly, faced with only two choices, many voters automatically ticked or crossed one of the boxes.

The elections for Glen Eira's Rosstown Ward (12 candidates) and Greater Dandenong's Silverleaf Ward (13 candidates) offer interesting parallels. The informal voting rate was much higher in Greater Dandenong, which had an attendance election and a substantial proportion of residents who were not fluent in English. However, in nearly every category of informal vote the proportions were very similar in the two elections. The two exceptions were 'Numbers – other', which was about 9 percentage points higher in the Glen Eira election, and 'Writing - deliberate', which was about 9 percentage points higher in the Greater Dandenong election. The many similarities between the two elections suggest that the number of candidates was a key factor affecting the types of mistakes that voters made.

The following table confirms the primacy of numbering errors in elections with large numbers of candidates. Ticks and crosses exceeded 10% only in the two elections with fewer than five candidates. Writing was important in these two elections and also in Greater Dandenong. There was a significant number of blank ballot papers in all elections, though it was lower in the two elections which had most candidates.

Apparently deliberate informal votes were a sizeable category everywhere except Moyne Shire and Wyndham's Harrison Ward. As well as the two elections with fewer than five candidates, there was a substantial proportion of deliberately informal votes in Greater Dandenong's Silverleaf Ward. It may be that in attendance elections, where candidate statements are not delivered to all voters, voters are more inclined to cast a protest vote. Many written comments on ballot papers expressed contempt for all the candidates on offer or complained that the voter knew nothing about them. In the elections with more candidates there were protests about having to fill in so many boxes.

Note: 'Ticks and crosses – other' and 'Writing – other' are not included above as they were neither deliberate nor expressed a preference.

A key finding from this study is that 68.8%, more than two thirds of informal votes analysed, were cast by voters who expressed a clear preference but whose vote could not be accepted because the voter made errors in completing the full sequence of preferences required by the Local Government Act 1989.

APPENDIX 13: COMPULSORY VOTING STATISTICS AND ANALYSIS

Section 40 of the Local Government Act 1989 determines that voting in Local Government elections is compulsory for enrolled residents<sup>17</sup> and provides for the appointment of a prosecution officer for the enforcement process. Voting in local government elections is compulsory for all enrolled residents, i.e. those enrolled on the Electoral Commissioner's list (EC list), but is not compulsory for those enrolled on the Chief Executive Officer's list (CEO list). An exception to this, is for the Melbourne City Council elections where voting is compulsory for all enrolled voters.

Significantly since 2005, voter turnout during local government elections has averaged 72.92%. Voter turnout in 2016 was above that observed in 2012 and slightly below average for the last four major rounds of local government general elections.

VOTER TURNOUT

	2004/5	2008	2012	2016
All Councils	73.89	74.68	70.96	72.15%
Attendance elections	67.59	70.03	63.62	61.49%
Postal elections	75.51	75.96	72.53	73.75%

Further analysis of 2016 data, shows that of those voters enrolled on the EC list, where voting is compulsory, 77.17% participated in the elections. This translates to around 840,000 enrolled voters who did not exercise their right to vote, and therefore were subject to the compulsory voting enforcement process.

Prior to the despatch of the first notice in the enforcement program, a preliminary process takes place to exclude further non-voters who are exempt from voting, such as those over 70 years of age, or those who are the subject of information reports detailing valid excuses for not voting.

In addition, voters are also excused where their ballot material was received by the VEC within seven days of the close of the extended postal vote receipt period (4 November 2017) and they had signed and dated their material before the close of voting on Friday 21 October 2017.

In 2016, the number of apparent non-voters remaining after preliminary processing was 598,913. Apparent Failure to Vote Notices (AFTVN) were issued to this group.

The following table shows response statistics from the despatch of Apparent Failure to Vote Notices for the 2012 and 2016 local government elections.

	2012	2016
Apparent Failure to Vote Notices (AFTVN) issued as percentage of total enrolment.	12.34% (505,582)	13.53% (598,913)
Response rate to Apparent Failure to Vote Notice	46.36% (234,367)	41.55% (248,878)
Invalid responses as percentage of total responses	26.54% (62,198)	32.23% (80,227)
No response to AFTVN	53.64% (271,215)	58.45% (350,035)
Percentage of voters excused based on returned AFTVN	73.58% (172,439)	67.76% (168,651)
Infringement Notices issued as percentage of AFTVNs	65.89% (333,143)	71.84% (430,262)

It is important to note with respect to 2016, 350,035 (58.45%) of apparent non-voters did not respond to the Apparent Failure to Vote Notice which provided the opportunity for those affected to state a reason for not voting or provide evidence that they did vote at which point enforcement action would likely have ceased.

Additionally, with respect to Infringement Notices, the opportunity to request a review is available and as at 19 May 2017 the VEC had received 5,187 requests for review resulting in 4,290 infringements being withdrawn and 897 being confirmed. Those withdrawn were generally as a result of the provision of further supporting documentation.

ANALYSIS OF INVALID RESPONSES

In order to better understand the reasons provided for not voting and to eliminate the possibility of any systemic issues, a review of several councils holding postal elections was conducted. The Table below examines the information provided by a sample of those non-voters who have had their response to the AFTVN deemed invalid. The Rural City of Horsham was considered in the first instance, specifically where an elector had raised concerns publically that their response to an 'Apparent Failure to Vote Notice' had been deemed to be invalid or insufficient. In this case all invalid responses were examined.

Three further councils were also considered, on a sample basis, and categories of invalid responses ascertained. Detailed results are shown below.

* All invalid responses analysed for Horsham due to small numbers

** Sample of invalid responses analysed – sample size 1,857, 397 and 3,936 respectively.

In summary:

- In these postal elections, many non-voters related their voting experience with an attendance election, possibly the 2016 Federal election, where they believed they had voted at a voting centre (26.9%)
- Many acknowledged that they had forgotten to vote or to mail their ballot material (20.6%)
- For others, while their ballot material was returned, it was signed and dated after the required close date (14.8%)

These three categories of non-voters accounted for 62% of the invalid responses analysed. The reasons offered were not valid and sufficient and could not be accepted by the prosecution officer.

Also of note from the table above, 2.7% of the invalid responses analysed claimed to have returned their ballot material though the VEC is not in receipt of this material.

CONCLUSION

The VEC has full confidence in the integrity of the elections and the non-voter enforcement process. Every eligible and valid vote was accounted for and included in calculating election results, the accuracy of which cannot be disputed.

Voter turnout at 72.15% is consistent with that of previous elections and indeed is improved on that observed in 2012. Secondly, the compulsory voting enforcement process is being conducted entirely in accordance with State law (as for previous elections) and the numbers associated with the various notices sent to non-voters and equally their non-responses are relatively consistent with previous events. Thirdly, in many cases where an elector claimed that they voted yet received an infringement notice, detailed analysis reveals that the declaration slip associated with their ballot pack was dated and signed after the required close date. Under the Act, this situation is determined as one of not voting. Finally, there is no evidence to suggest that Australia Post did not meet their contracted obligations around the delivery and return of ballot material and assurances by Australia Post in this regard are accepted.

Given that turnout for local council elections since 2005 has ranged between 70-75% and 2016 was no different, an issue for stakeholders is not the statutory compulsory voting enforcement process, which is being administered correctly, but improving engagement and participation in these important local elections.
