Dear Victorian Electoral Commissioner,

At the moment the number of councillors is enough when it comes to representing the local residents and businesses in the area. As a result, it is unnecessary for further changes to be scheduled or motions such as this to be acted upon, especially as there are no forecasts for population expansion or an increase in the number of communities that are asking for this service.

So consequently, in terms of the current electorate structure, I strongly recommend that it remains with ten single-councillor wards. I am satisfied with the job my ward councillor is doing in being a truly local representative and having much awareness of local issues.

Thank you for your patience.

With kind regards,

Priya (Boroondara resident)
