Review of Council Ward Allocations

Dear Victorian Electoral Commissioner

I have been made aware that a review is being conducted into the make-up of Boroondara council.

Single councillor wards allow the councillor to appreciate & understand their area in detail and for them to connect with residents around their concerns. When residents have an issue they know who to speak to and at council meetings the councillor then speaks for issues in his/her ward and the other councillors will defer to them for that zone. I work as a Management Consultant at a Big 4 professional services firm and have seen over many years of reviewing commercial and government organisations the need to have clear accountabilities and responsibilities: this is achieved in a simple, practical manner through the single councillor ward system.

I would like to register strong objection to any changes to the system we currently have. I know from professional consulting experience that it is an effective, efficacious system that is well worth retaining.

For your consideration.

Thanks,
Peter Robinson
