Greater Dandenong should continue with 11 Councillors as it has for many years. Voters are provided with a bigger choice of candidates for elections.

Red Sun Ward has the most industrial area, so I think the northern Wards could be enlarged to make the number of voters more even, although the population is increasing, with the number of refugees and migrants coming to the City and some of the most disadvantaged.

Councillors should work together and share workloads, although the Wards are very diverse and seem to work independently.

Councillors should spread themselves around their entire wards, and be seen to be available to voters.
