I support Option A, ‘Southern Grampians Shire Council consist of seven councillors elected from an unsubdivided electoral structure’.

According to VEC’s internal analysis, option A is still the most democratic option applicable for the SGSC to date, stating that: ‘During the 2016 election, there were three candidates from the smaller rural towns who were elected, suggesting that smaller communities of interest are still able to elect local representatives, rather than the major population centre being disproportionately represented’.
